West Virginia Blast Traps 86 Coal Miners

TWO KNOWN DEAD AS RESCUE TEAMS REACH TORN AREAS

45 Men Escape Explosion Two and Half Miles Underground; Blast Hit in Three Corridors, Report

BARTLEY, W. Va., Jan. 10. (AP)—An explosion, possibly presaging the worst West Virginia mine disaster in more than a decade, killed at least two men and entombed an estimated 86 others two miles underground today.

W. C. Sturgiss, a district mine inspector, announced shortly before midnight that the the number of men trapped had been revised upward from 85 to 86. Forty-seven men escaped.

Eight rescue crews from this southwestern West Virginia village and near-by communities dug their way toward three blast-wrecked sections of the mine but progress was slow and midnight found them still 2,500 feet from the estimated location of the disaster.

300 Ready to Help.

Sturgiss expressed the opinion that a group of 25 miners in the "fourth left" area of the mine had the "best chance" of surviving. He did not speculate on the fate of the others.

Company officials headed by Vice President R. E. Salvati, of Holden, remained hopeful that a majority of the men had escaped.

Salvati reported that the 47 men in the eastern section of the operation came out unscathed at 4 o'clock this afternoon, unaware there had been a blast.

One Victim Identified.

One of the dead men, whose bodies were found a half-mile from the bottom of the 620-foot shaft, was identified as Charley Moffitt. The other was not identified. Their bodies were left below while the crews passed on.

This valley mining community, scene of the blast, is in the southwestern tip of McDowell county, one of southern West Virginia's busiest and richest coal sections. Two other Pond Creek mines rear their shafts within sight of No. 1, along the banks of Swallow Dry Fork river.

War, the nearest town, is four miles away and Welch is 20 miles away.

The cause of the blast was undetermined, although Sturgiss said it was possible the men had cut

Texas Firebrand Visits Here

Maury Maverick, mayor of San Antonio, Texas, and one of the fieriest firebrands on the American scene, came to Atlanta yesterday to "look over the town" and to learn what this city is doing that his own municipality isn't. He speaks tonight at Georgia Tech. A large audience is expected.

Maverick, in Atlanta, Tells Secret of Cleaning Up a City

Inoculate Citizens by Appointing Them on Committees To Help, Says San Antonio Mayor; Kicked Out Everyone in Health Department.

By HAROLD MARTIN.

Cleaning up a graft-ridden, money-wasting city and making the people like it is easy if you call the people in and ask them to help you do it, Maury Maverick, San Antonio's fire-eating reform mayor, declared here yesterday afternoon.

"Lay your plans to clean up the place and then put everybody on committees so they can actually take a hand in it," he advised, as arriving here for his address at Georgia Tech tonight at 8:30 o'clock he talked to reporters.

"That inoculates them from the old crowd you are throwing out and who will be bound to try to get you. If the good folks are given a part in the reform, they don't listen when the folks you've bounced come around saying 'Listen, that guy is ruining this town.'"

Mr. Maverick should know what he is talking about. After a boisterous career in the lower house of congress, where he became known from coast to coast as one whose voice was never still whenever there was anything of national import to be discussed, Mr. Mav-

ANTI-LYNCH BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

Election-Year Favorite Voted, 252-131; Called Vicious Attack on South

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The house approved one of its perennial election-year favorites, the anti-lynching bill, today and sent it to the senate where an unyielding southern filibuster was set to kill it.

The vote of 252 to 131 followed a discussion in which Representative Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, asserted that the measure was "nothing but the renewal of a vicious attack on the white people of the southern states," coming not from the Republicans, he said, but from the Democrats.

All southern efforts to amend the measure were crushed, under a massive voting combination of Republicans and Democrats from the north and west. The same fate met an effort by Representative Hoffman, Republican, Michigan, inveterate foe of the CIO, to attach provisions intended to restrict picketing.

The single change accepted was offered by the author of the measure, Representative Gavagan, Democrat, New York, who represents the district of which New

Ladies Turn Deaf Ear To Radio Romances

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Jan. 10.—(AP)—The New Rochelle Woman's Club is starting an "I'm not listening" campaign directed against the daytime serial romances on radio networks.

"We think they're just like second or third-rate magazine stories, which aren't read by people who want good literature," said Mrs. Everett Barnard, head of the club's foreign and domestic relations department.

They are hoping to extend their campaign later through the county and state federation of women's clubs.

SONS, DAUGHTERS, GRANDDAUGHTERS LEFT GRAY ESTATE

One-Fifth of Fortune Valued at $270,000 Goes to Each of 4 Children; Rest to Grandchildren.

Two sons, two daughters and two granddaughters of Mrs. James R. Gray, former chairman of the board of the Atlanta Journal, will share in her estate, valued at $270,000, according to the will probated in Fulton ordinary court yesterday afternoon.

The sons, Walker Inman Gray and James Richard Gray, and the daughters, Mrs. Cordelia Inman Gray Brumby and Mrs. Harriett Frances Gray Yankey, each will receive one-fifth of the estate—real and personal.

Rest Divided.

The remaining one-fifth is to be divided equally among the granddaughters, Mrs. Jennie Gray Pearce Macauley and Mrs. Mary Inman Pearce Smylie, daughters of Mrs. Jennie Gray Pearce.

The will, dated July 17, 1929, made no mention of Richard Gray Gallogly, a grandson whom Mrs. Gray sought unsuccessfully to free from a life sentence imposed in connection with the murder of an Atlanta drugstore clerk.

Walker Inman Gray and James Richard Gray were named as executors of the will and were not required to post bond.

A portion of the will was invalidated by the recent sale of the Atlanta Journal to James M. Cox, of Ohio.

Share Alike.

This portion provided that Mrs. Gray's stock in the Journal—the exact amount not being given—was to be distributed among her two sons and two daughters, share and share alike.

The $270,000 estimate of the estate, it was explained, includes what Mrs. Gray received from her stock in the sale.

Another provision of the will provided that before any of the children could sell their Atlanta Journal stock they would have to offered it first to the other children, and then, if they refused, to John S. Cohen, now dead, and John A. Brice.

The will directed that the estate should be kept together for a period of five years unless a majority of the heirs decide upon an earlier distribution.

Widow of Dodge Is Granted $1,250,000 of His Fortune

Sisters-in-Law Plan Appeal in Attempt To Gain Part of Wealth.

DETROIT, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Mrs. Annie Laurine Dodge, former $18-a-week telephone operator, won $1,250,000 of the Dodge motor millions in probate court today, but counsel for two sisters-in-law immediately prepared to appeal the verdict.

Drowned in Canada.

The estate of young Dodge, who drowned following an accidental dynamite explosion on a Canadian island in Georgian bay, was estimated to total about $11,000,000. This represented accumulated income from his share of a $40,000,000 trust fund set up by the late John F. Dodge, his father.

Probate Judge Thomas C. Murphy ruled out the contention of attorneys for young Dodge's three sisters—Mrs. Isabel Sloane, Mrs. Winifred Seyburn and Mrs. Frances Johnson—that the accumulated income should be divided among them, instead of being regarded as belonging to his estate.

Appeal Is Planned.

Charles Wright Jr., attorney for Mrs. Seyburn and Mrs. Sloane, said he would appeal the ruling to circuit court within 20 days. Renville Wheat, Mrs. Johnson's attorney, said he had not decided whether to appeal.

Annie Dodge, 21, will continue to receive the $5,000 monthly allowance she has had since Daniel's death, until litigation over the estate is ended.

Judge Murphy's decision cut state and federal governments in for a $6,000,000 slice of the estate, through collection of inheritance taxes. It was estimated the federal government's share would be about $4,800,000.

Daniel Dodge's mother, Mrs. Mathilda R. Wilson, will receive approximately $3,500,000.

Mother Gets Share.

Daniel Dodge, 21 years old when he died, left his entire estate, except for minor bequests, to his mother. His widow was provided for by a $250,000 prenuptial agreement but she exercised her widow's right, under Michigan law, to disregard her husband's will and take her statutory one-fourth of the estate.

From an $18-a-week switchboard operator's job to an inheritance of $1,250,000. That is the story of Mrs. Annie Laurine Dodge, former Gore Bay, Ont., telephone operator, who yesterday was awarded the legacy as her share of the estate of her husband, Daniel Dodge, injured fatally in 1938 when he and his bride were honeymooning.

North Avenue Is Crossed By 1,500 Trains in Day

County Commission To Discuss Supplying $57,500 Needed To Eliminate Traffic Hazard; Federal and City Funds Already Voted.

By WILLARD COPE.

It's fun, all right, but is it safe?

The subject under discussion is the small matter of driving, or attempting to drive, the short city block along North avenue just west of Marietta street where 21—count 'em, friends—21 separate and distinct sets of railroad tracks bisect your hopeful but perspiring path.

It will give some idea of how safe it isn't to cite just one small statistic, to-wit:

Over that short city block of open thoroughfare pass 1,500 units of movement of five railroads every 24 hours.

Heroes would think nothing of it, but even heroes would be interested in having—as often happens—three of these "units of movement" going across the street at the same time right out there in front of you.

It would keep 'em awake, like coffee.

But truck drivers and average motorists have gotten softened up a lot by this modern life of ease—and for some reason they believe that something should be done about accepting the $485,000 which the federal government has been trying for nearly five years to spend on an underpass to take some of the interest out of the voyage.

City council's finance committee last Saturday voted $57,500 toward the rights-of-way which must be purchased with local funds. The Southern and N., C. & St. L. railroads each will put up $10,000. The remaining $57,500 is to be discussed by the county commissioners during the hearings on the tentative 1940 budget which begin Monday.

Purely as a matter of scientific

10 MILLION BUDGET FOR CITY ADOPTED

Accord Is Reached on Spending $10,482,178; Salary Raises Killed.

The city finance committee and the budget commission acted jointly last night to balance the annual finance sheet, setting total municipal expenditures at $10,482,178.14 for 1940, and holding $57,500 for the West North avenue underpass in reserve to be made available as soon as Fulton county matches the sum needed for the project.

All salary raises and adjustments were deferred after a hard-fought battle between various members of the finance group and the budget commission as the struggle to reconcile expenditures and anticipated revenue progressed.

A special meeting of the budget commission, which increased expected revenue by $110,549.14 for the year, enabled the finance group to balance the sheet and pave the way for its submission to city council Monday.

All members of both the budget commission and the finance group will support the action taken last night, and will request "council to concur in our action which gives the city more public improve-

Storm Signals Up

Gathering Cloud May Break To Find Allies, Reds at War.

By COLONEL FREDERICK PALMER,
For North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—More to the point than Prime Minister Chamberlain's "it is only on the sea that the war may be said to be in full operation" is his stern warning that what has happened so far is merely preliminary to the struggle to come—"the lull before the storm."

Where will the storm of a great offensive break? Will the Germans or the Allies break it?

In the air, it will be very evidently in the North sea area, whether a blitzkrieg against Britain or Britsh bombing of German bases and industrial and transport centers. On land, the possibilities are rapidly broadening in territorial range beyond the North sea and the Rhine.

Mr. Chamberlain said, "How long this (the present stalemate on the western front) will last we do not know." If Mr. Chamberlain does not know, does the British staff or Adolf Hitler know?

Accepting the general military view that a million men can hold any offensive of men and tanks in wave after wave as they pile up dead and wreckage under parabolic cataracts of fire as a carpet over the hurdles they have to take—what then?

$280,924 MARKED FOR SEWER WORK IN DEKALB COUNTY

Plan Embraces Wide Variety of Activities, School Construction, Road Work, Malarial Control.

Approval of WPA projects for Georgia totaling nearly $2,000,000 was announced yesterday by R. L. MacDougall, state administrator of the Works Projects Administration.

Headed by a grant of more than a million dollars for adult education work, the program embraces a wide variety of activities, including school construction, road work and street improvements, sewer and water main installations and malarial-control drainage.

Largest single project in the group, other than the educational program, is a $280,924 sewer program for DeKalb county.

DeKalb Project.

The DeKalb project calls for sewer work in every part of the county and will virtually complete the new DeKalb county metropolitan sewer system.

Main lines of the new system are now in operation, according to County Engineer E. W. Wier, and the new project will connect outlying districts to the central trunk line.

Sections where work will be done include parts of Druid Hills, the Stone Mountain sector and other districts of the county now served by septic tank systems. Work will begin within a few days, Wier said.

Other work includes school projects in Fulton and DeKalb counties. The Fulton project calls for the construction of a $32,350 addition to the Yonge street school to accommodate 532 additional negro students.

Agricultural Building.

An agricultural building, livestock barn, and arena building will be added to the Panthersville High school in the DeKalb work. Cost of the project will be $13,389.

The educational appropriation, totaling $1,136,588, will permit the continuance for another year of the state-wide adult educational project.

The project, which furnishes work for nearly 800 unemployed teachers, provides for adult classes in every county in the state.

The program includes first aid and handicraft, music, instruction of the blind, vocational work, nursery schools and adult literacy work. More than 25,000 adults are now learning to read and write through the project.

WPA Administered.

Administered by the WPA, the program is handled in co-operation with the State Department of Education. Each teacher approved by the WPA for the project later comes before the State Department of Education for approval and in the event of vacancies in the state school system is eligible for employment there.

Other projects in the new group are:

Glynn county, city-wide improvements in Brunswick, 12,101.

CONTEMPT WRIT CITES STODDARD IN HIGHWAY ROW

Adjutant General, Lieutenant Colonel Skelton Ordered To Appear at Hearing on January 13.

By The Associated Press.

A brace of court contempt citations against militia officers keeping martial law clamped on the State Highway Department projected the road chairmanship row back into headlines yesterday.

Adjutant General John E. Stoddard refused to accept the orders issued against himself and Lieutenant Colonel J. H. Skelton, commanding the detail of guardsmen patrolling the highway building.

Superior Judge Will R. Smith, of the Alapaha circuit, ordered the officers to appear at a contempt hearing in Nashville, January 13. He previously ordered them to appear there the same date at a hearing on a temporary injunction to restrain guardsmen from barring ousted Road Chairman W. L. Miller from the chairman's office.

Alleges Service Evasion.

The contempt citation alleged Stoddard and Skelton attempted to evade service of an order last Saturday on the temporary injunction.

Stoddard told Fulton Deputies J. Milton Nelms and C. T. Maddox he could not accept any orders which would interfere with his obeying Governor Rivers' martial law over the Road Department.

"But, I know you men have a superior to obey and I am not going to do anything to prevent you leaving any orders on my desk," he added.

One of the deputies said it was "an unpleasant duty," and laid the folded orders on Stoddard's desk.

There was no indication yesterday whether the guard officers would attend the Nashville hearing Saturday.

General Cites His Oath.

The general cited to the deputies his oath of office pledging him to obey orders of the President of the United States and the Governor, and added:

"Under that oath, and under the laws of Georgia, the Governor is my commander-in-chief and I cannot permit any action to be taken against me that would keep me from performing my official duties at any time, and especially in carrying out the Governor's orders when martial law is declared by him."

Meanwhile quiet prevailed at the highway building where the office roster listed only the names of two commissioners, Herman Watson and James L. Gillis. Several days ago the board also listed "W. A. Miller, chairman," but this was removed.

Also listed was the name of L. L. Patten, whom Rivers appointed chairman when he ousted Miller last month. Patten since has resigned as chairman but not as a board member. Judge Smith's recent decision saying Miller is rightful chairman has been appealed to the state supreme court.

10 MILLION BUDGET FOR CITY ADOPTED

ments than in many years," it was agreed.

Practically all public improvements remained as they had been in the previous meetings of the committee, only minor switches being voted. New equipment for various departments and only a few additions in personnel were allowed in the balanced budget.

Underpass Fund Set Up.

In taking the $57,500 for the west North avenue underpass from previous appropriations, the finance committee and the budget commission passed a resolution pledging that the city will make that sum available "just as soon as the county pays over its share for the construction of the project," and specifically called on the county to act promptly.

Mayor Hartsfield, backed by every member of both bodies, emphasized, "We are not lessening our efforts for that project one iota, but are anxious to see the work start now and are just putting that money away where it will not be touched for any other purpose."

After about $8,000 in salary raises and adjustments had been voted, and lopped off by action of the committee, Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, chairman of the finance committee, called on the budget commission to increase its anticipation for 1940 revenue, which had been set at $10,371,529 for the year.

Several members of the budget body appeared ready to do that, but the mayor said:

"I believe under the law I am supposed to call the budget commission into session."

"Call them now and let's get the budget balanced," Gilliam said, pointing out that the commission held $100,000 in reserve when it anticipated 1940 revenues.

"I haven't called the commission —yet," Hartsfield retorted. "We've got to cut out some of the things we included. I am told we are $34,000 over expected revenues even if we anticipate that $100,000."

Move to Adjourn.

"I move we adjourn then and go home," Councilman Mac Bolen, finance committee member, said. "There's no use staying here."

The motion to adjourn was defeated, and Hartsfield asked for a private conference with B. Graham West, city comptroller. Members of the budget commission and the finance committee filed out of Councilman Frank Wilson's living room where the session was held. Wilson entertained both bodies at a dinner prior to the meeting.

Several minutes later, the budget commission members were summoned to return to the room, and Mayor Hartsfield issued a call for a meeting of that body.

A few minutes later, the entire finance committee was asked back in the meeting room, and the budget was approved.

Urges Salary Hikes.

When the finance committee voted to abrogate all salary adjustments, Councilman J. Allen Couch protested, saying: "I believe some of the salary adjustments and raises we allowed are reasonable and just and should be carried through." He added he did not think all should be voted out under a blanket resolution and cast his ballot against the procedure.

Previous allocations for park purchases were switched at the session. A sum of $50,000 had been provided for various purchases, but the committee revised the figure, making $10,000 available for each of the six wards with the second and sixth wards being given the authority to use a portion of their funds for library purposes.

Councilman Bolen resisted the procedure, but was outvoted hopelessly.

Grady hospital was given $7,000 for new personnel to establish an out-patient supervision department, but this sum was deducted from equipment allowances already set up for the institution, and Battle Hill Tuberculosis sanatorium was allowed $720 for the year for a housekeeper, this sum also to be deducted from operating supplies.

The city sanitary department got 17 additional laborers at a cost of $10,786.50 for the year.

Howell Park Gets $2,000.

Howell park got a special appropriation of $2,000 for improvements when Bolen insisted that the city must do something to save the park.

A special allocation of $25,000 for street improvements was set aside in a special fund to be made available for WPA projects, which it was said probably will replace wood blocks on Walton, Broad and Forsyth streets bringing improvements valued at $100,000 or more during the year.

The police, fire, sanitary, water and various city departments will get additional motor equipment from the sheet, their funds having been previously voted.

City Will Get Rain, Warmer Weather Today

Cloudy skies and rain, accompanied by a rise in temperature are in store for the city today, according to the weatherman.

The mercury is not expected to drop blow 35 degrees, ending the period of freezing temperature. The high temperataure duirng the day will be around 45 degrees, according to the forecaster.

Yesterday's low was 29 degrees, reached at 6 a. m. in the morning. The high was 43, recorded for several hours yesterday afternoon.

Girl Who Balked At Strip-Tease Finds a Home

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The future took on a sunny look today for diminutive Patricia Winfrey, 27, although outside the jail it was raining.

Today she was released to the Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, who lost his parish because he married Wallis Simpson and the Duke of Windsor, and will live with him and his wife until she re-establishes herself.

SCHOOL BOND VOTE KEY TO $2,225,000

Bulk of Those on WPA in Fulton To Get Work if Issue Is Approved.

Sixty per cent of the needy of Fulton county now awaiting WPA assignments will be given employment at no cost to the county if voters pass the $750,000 bond issue soon to go to the polls, WPA officials predicted last night.

Originally launched as a building program, the bond issue provides for an expansion of the entire county school system.

Proponents of the issue have been working for several months for its passage, but only last night did they learn to their surprise that a favorable vote on the measure would to a large extent solve the acute labor problem now confronting the county.

Here, according to WPA Area Engineer Robert C. Watkins, is what would happen if the issue is passed:

First, approximately two and a quarter million dollars in federal funds would be made available to the state.

Then, if the entire proceeds of the bond issue are immediately made available, the WPA would supply approximately $1,000,000 of this sum to be used on the school program. Of this $1,000,000, approximately 90 per cent would be paid out in wages.

In addition, however, the remaining $1,125,000 would then be available for any approved project in the county.

Thus, the $750,000, which would be used principally for purchasing materials, would make available $2,225,000 in federal funds, and of this federal money, approximately 90 per cent would go to pay labor costs.

Huge Wage Fund.

As a result, if all the projects are completed within a year, roughly $2,000,000 would go to pay the wages of needy workers.

This sum, at the prevailing WPA wage scale, would supply a year's employment for more than 3,000 workers, or at least 60 per cent of the certified needy now awaiting work.

"And," said Jere Wells, superintendent of county schools last night, "for the original investment of $750,000 the county would have new school buildings worth far more than that."

'Gone With Wind' Hookey Player To Have Respite

NORTON, Mass., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Martha Scott Clayton, New York debutante who has been confined to the Wheaton College campus because she cut classes before Christmas vacation to attend Atlanta's "Gone With the Wind" ball, will have a respite Saturday.

She is among a group of students who will "take over" an Attleboro newspaper for a day as part of their college work, and she will act as "publisher."

The festivities at Atlanta, where she met Clark Gable but did not dance with him as she hoped, were worth the 30 days' confinement to the campus, which means no "dates" and no movies, she said.

OIL IN GEORGIA SAND HELD 'ENCOURAGING'

Peyton Says Clinch Traces More 'Persistent' Than Previous Findings.

State Geologist Garland Peyton described as "encouraging" yesterday the findings of oil drillers in a test well 15 miles south of Homerville, Ga.

The geologist asserted examination of material lifted from the well disclosed a 30-foot stratum of partially oil-saturated sand at a depth of about 400 feet.

Previous test wells in south Georgia, he said, "never have found sand as thick as this or traces (of oil) as persistent as this."

Peyton observed, however, the oil traces did not indicate findings in commercial quantities and added "it would not begin to flow of its own accord."

The churn drill rig, with which the Georgia Resources Company is making the test, is capable of drilling to a maximum depth of from 2,500 to 3,000 feet, Peyton said.

The well is in Clinch county, about 50 miles southwest of Offerman, Ga., where an unsuccessful test well was drilled last year.

Atlanta Real Estate Business Has $14,000,000 Increase

Building Activity Sets a 10-Year Record; Property Sales, Mortgage and Loan Deeds, Contract Awards All Show Gains.

Atlanta's volume of real estate business last year was approximately $82,000,000, or $14,000,000 greater than in 1938, which was $68,500,000.

This includes residential and business property sales, mortgage and loan deeds, building contract awards and building permits, and a partial report on commercial leases, coming mainly from eight of the leading realty agencies in the city and from those legally recorded.

Figures do not take into account many commercial leases, residential rentals or office building leases, as no official records of these transactions are available. With these added, and many other transactions of which no record is available, the aggregate amount of real estate business, combining all forms of deals in connection therewith, would be near an approximate figure of $100,000,000—if one's guess is as good as another's.

Many Sources Used.

In the gathering of figures touching the big realty increase such sources as the Fulton Daily Report, F. W. Dodge Corporation, the Industrial Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, the Georgia Power Company, Atlanta Gas Light Company, Southern Bell Telephone Company, and the city waterworks were sought.

The number of realty transfers for 1939 involve $26,348,191, as compared with $22,601,533 for 1938, according to statistics kept by the Fulton Daily Report. These figures are indicative of some of the substantial gains shown.

10-Year Record.

Building activity within the city for 1939 set a new 10-year record, with a total exceeding the $10,000,000 mark for the first time since 1929, and showing a gain of more than $6,000,000 over the previous year.

This shows 699 single-family houses were built costing $2,135,330 in 1939, compared with 575 costing $1,793,927 the previous year. Duplex dwellings costing $102,550 numbered 64 last year, compared with 43 costing $96,465 in 1938. Last year 105 apartment houses were built costing $2,958,294, against two costing $10,000 in 1938. In all, 1,856 families were housed in new buildings in 1939, compared to 673 families the previous year.

Total construction awards in the Atlanta area, including both Fulton and DeKalb counties, revealed a gain of $5,948,000 in the first 11 months of 1939 over the entire previous year. The totals for December will run these figures up considerably, and R. M. Hairston, Atlanta manager of F. W. Dodge Corporation, estimates that the year's gain—the best since 1929—will be between 45 and 50 per cent.

The Dodge report totals show 2,209 projects costing $19,795,000 in the first 11 months of 1939, compared with 1,765 projects valued at $13,847,000 in the 12 months of the previous year. This includes 1,869 residences costing $11,875,000 in 1939, against 1,505 residences valued at $8,529,000 in 1938.

Very definite figures showing increases in real estate can be found in the number of electric and gas meters and telephones installed, and by water meters installed by the city. These are:

Electric meters—88,504 in 1939 and 84,125 in 1938, a gain of 4,379; gas meters—64,344 in 1939 and 60,982 in 1938, a gain of 3,362; telephones—88,339 in 1939 and 81,920 in 1938, a gain of 6,419, and water meters—66,242 in 1939 and 64,657 in 1938, a gain of 1,585.

The Industrial Bureau reported that 124 new concerns and manufacturing plants located in Atlanta last year, in addition to 74 resident representatives. The total number of persons employed by these concerns is 1,080 with an annual pay roll of $1,641,000.

POSTAL RECEIPTS GAIN.

HOGANSVILLE, Ga., Jan. 10.—Post office receipts here for 1939 totaled $8,953.43, showing an increase of more than $1,000 over the business of 1938.

ETHERIDGE OUSTER PROCEEDINGS SET FOR HEARING TODAY

Superior Court Tribunal Will Weigh Case of C. F. Brackett, Who Says He Was Elected to Post.

Quo warranto proceedings seeking to oust Fulton Superior Court Judge A. L. "Jack" Etheridge will be submitted today to a Fulton superior court tribunal composed of Judges John D. Humphries, Virlyn B. Moore and Edgar E. Pomeroy.

The hearing is scheduled for 9 a. m. at the Fulton court house.

The ouster proceedings were filed by Attorney George Finch in behalf of Claud F. Brackett, Atlanta lawyer, who contends that he was elected to the judgeship at the June 6 election.

Finch said last night that he had filed an amendment for Brackett in which was set up three certified copies of the official ballots, containing the printed names of Brackett and Etheridge.

In this connection, it was pointed out that Etheridge a few days ago filed an answer in which he set up that the ballots did not carry the name of Brackett, but were "mutilated" by having Brackett's name written in or pasted on with stickers.

Judge Etheridge was appointed to the post by Governor Rivers following the death of Judge E. D. Thomas.

At the June 6 election, Brackett contends he received 847 votes while Judge Etheridge received but 317 votes.

MOYERS IS MOVED TO TATTNALL PRISON

Former Lawyer Begins Serving Two to Three-Year Sentenc.

His loquaciousness gone, William T. Moyers, former lawyer who was convicted twice of the robbery of T. K. Glenn, Atlanta banker, yesterday began serving a two to three-year sentence in Tattnall prison.

Moyers was among five prisoners transferred from Fulton Tower to the penitentiary.

Lieutenant Jack Carroll, of the Fulton county police, and Fred K. Stephens, of the Public Works Department, served as guards during the trip.

Lieutenant Carroll said Moyers spoke only three times during the long trip. Once he asked if Carroll was a member of the highway patrol, another time he asked him his name and the third time he complained that his handcuffs were too tight.

Last week, Moyers had a number of county officials in a dither when he declined to be fingerprinted. However, after several days of stoutly refusing, he submitted without protest.

1,429 APPLICATIONS MADE FOR NAVY

But Only 160 Enter Service Here in 1939.

A total of 1,429 persons sought to enlist in the United States navy through the Atlanta recruiting office during 1939, according to Macon Perry, chief quartermaster in charge of recruiting.

Of the total number applying, only 210 passed the mental and physical examinations. A total of 160 men actually entered the navy.

CANADA DECLINES TECH STUDENT'S OFFER 'TO ENLIST'

Bryce Martin, Freshman, Heads for Home in Texas; U.S. Citizenship Kept Him Out of R.A.F.

A little matter of American citizenship has frustrated the romantic urge of Bryce Martin, Georgia Tech freshman, to join the Royal Air Force in Canada and fight the German army.

Yesterday he was on his way home to Houston, Texas, refused a pilot's commission by Toronto recruiting officials because citizens south of the border are not permitted to serve under British colors.

Barred from reserve and other non-permanent army units because of his insufficient 18 years, Martin telephoned his father, David M. Martin, that he "reckoned he would take a train home" for a visit before returning to Tech where he is studying mechanical engineering with an eye to aviation.

The honor student and Phi Delta Theta freshman slipped out of Brown dormitory Saturday morning and caught a train for Toronto, leaving behind a note to his roommate, Johnny Bier, which told of his desire "to do a little fighting before long."

Dr. M. L. Brittain, president of the institution, said yesterday that no disciplinary action was being considered and that Martin could return to school "if his work warranted and if he has not fallen too far behind in his studies."

Fraternity brothers and friends at Tech have heard nothing from the student Don Quixote since it was learned he had arrived safely in Toronto.

Church Attendance Sought by Want Ad

LAWRENCE, Mass., Jan. 10.—(AP)—The Rev. Arthur M. Butterfield, 59, pastor, inserted the following want-ad in the Lawrence Tribune today:

"Men and women who were or are members of the Salem Street P. M. church to occupy some of the empty seats and to take positions of trust and responsibility in the church. Reward in heaven. Board of Trustees."

The Rev. Butterfield said the church had 179 members, but that the Sunday attendance was only 50 in the morning and 30 at night.

INJURED IN ACCIDENT.

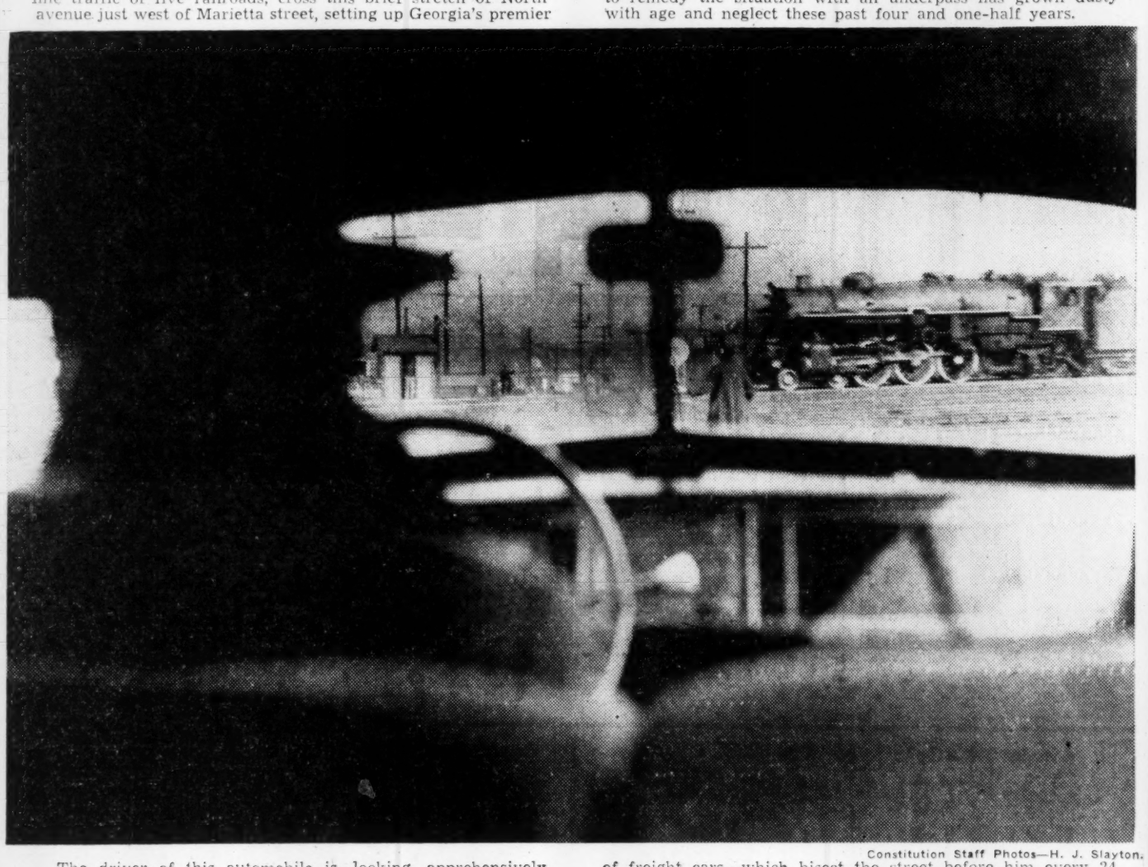
Motorists Have To Brave 21 Railroad Tracks at North Avenue Crossing

Twenty-one separate sets of railroad tracks, carrying main-line traffic of five railroads, cross this brief stretch of North avenue just west of Marietta street, setting up Georgia's premier grade-crossing hazard. A federal appropriation of $485,000 to remedy the situation with an underpass has grown dusty with age and neglect these past four and one-half years.



Constitution Staff Photos—H. J. Slayton.

1,500 TRAINS CROSS STREET EACH DAY

interest, a reporter and photographer for The Constitution made the trip across the tracks yesterday in an automobile, and then—doubtless carried away with the thrill of it all—turned and traveled back again.

A movement was reputedly under way last night to cite them for the feat.

Both felt rewarded, however, by their memories. There were 84 bumpings over rails (one bumping each for the front wheels, one bumping each for the rear wheels, over each of the 42 rails constituting the 21 sets of tracks) and there were incidental bumpings and side-slippings due to the slush, the cindery mud, and to the interesting, surrealistic holes in the pavement proper, if that is the word.

They made the trip over without interruption. This alone was said by old observers virtually to set a record for the course. But the start back was more educational.

For one thing, they found out how the outsides of passenger cars are dusted off. Contrary to the prevailing belief that this is done with a whiskbroom in some oversized barber shop, it was found that, in fact, the thing is accomplished by stationing two reasonably immobile negroes beside the track—one with a long-handled sort of mop and the other with a short-handled kind of brush—and just let the care slide past them, while you sit there and wait.

This eyeopener, or curtain-raiser, was accomplished by an old-fashioned switch engine with a cheerful engineer who felt that all this modern rush was a mistake and was leading a counter-revolution on his own.

He not only ran the cars across, while the voyageurs sat there in their automobile, but he ran them back again. The negroes remained immobile, as doubtless they had been instructed, and a fairly good shine was administered to the western exposure of the cars.

After a time the automobile trip was resumed by the hopeful and devoted pair. They bumped and slid along. Suddenly an agile gentleman with a large sign, which contained the suggestion, "Stop!" in large letters, appeared from nowhere, or anyway from somewhere along the sidelines.

The intrepid adventurers stopped.

Mary Kirk Brown's Estranged Mate Jailed for His Attempt To See Her

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Another court chapter was written today in the stormy marital difficulties of Mary Kirk Brown, four times wedded former Atlanta society girl.

Her estranged husband, Robert A. Kelly Jr., whom she now is suing for divorce, was fined $50 and sentenced to six days in jail today as a result of an escapade early last Sunday when he allegedly went to her stepfather's home, stood outside and yelled for his wife.

The stepfather, Louis Lowenstein, called police and officers arrested Kelly on charges of disturbing the peace and disorderly conduct.

At police headquarters, Kelly received two additional charges of disorderly conduct and drunkenness.

Expressing bitterness toward matrimony in general and his marriage in particular, Kelly blamed his impulsive visit in search of his wife and his subsequent imprisonment upon "too many drinks" taken after learning she planned to divorce him.

While her estranged husband was eating his first jail meal from a tin plate following his trial, the 28-year-old dark-haired Mrs. Kelly was seen by friends sipping from tall glasses at the cocktail room of a fashionable beach hotel.

She said she was "sorry" to learn her husband was in jail but added, "There's nothing else I can say." She said she had been leading a "very quiet life."

Action on her divorce case has been set for next Friday.

RIVERS PROCLAIMS 'DR. HERTY WEEK'

Campaign for Institute at Waycross Launched.

A campaign to organize the Herty Forest Institute at Waycross was launched yesterday as Governor Rivers proclaimed January 14-20 "Dr. Herty Week" and invited southern governors to attend the festival.

The fund which will establish the memorial to the "father of the white pine paper and pulp industry" will be raised by public subscription. A meeting, to which leaders in southern states have been invited, will be held during the week at Waycross.

The late Dr. Charles H. Herty, through his experiments in the use of white pine, influenced the attraction of over $200,000,000 investments in paper and pulp mills in the south, and Georgia, in particular.

COUNSEL FOR NLRB HITS U. S. TRIBUNAL

Charles Fahy Criticizes Court for Referring to Board as 'Executioner.'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Charles Fahy, general counsel for the labor board, criticized the federal court of appeals at Chicago today for referring to the board as "an executioner."

The circuit court, in reversing the board's order that the Inland Steel Company recognize the CIO steel workers' organizing committee as sole bargaining agent for its employes, said:

"This record as a whole discloses the danger of imposing upon a single agency the multiple duties of prosecutor, judge, jury and executioner."

Declaring he was not attacking the decision but this "nonjudicial" language, Fahy commented:

"No order of the board against an employer is final until approved by the courts.

"It hardly seems proper to refer to the board as an executioner."

AMERICUS RECORDS NOTABLE PROGRESS

Many Public Improvements Noted by Mayor Thomas L. Bell.

AMERICUS, Ga., Jan. 10.—(AP) Mayor Thomas L. Bell today listed improved public health measures, sewerage and water extensions, increased school facilities, a new recreation center and downtown business growth as the major accomplishments of this city during the past 10 years.

The mayor pointed out that the city, in co-operation with the county health department, had provided laws compelling inoculation of dogs against rabies, provided for inspection of food stores, hotels, restaurants and cafes and periodic examination of employes.

In addition, steps have been taken to improve public health, exterminate rats, enforce regulations for sanitation of dairies, with the city one of 85 in the United States on the "dairy honor roll," and aid three hospitals.

The past 10 years saw water and sewage mains extended to new territory, many old streets paved, curbed and guttered, with garbage removal provided every day except Sunday.

Mayor Bell said the city had developed a good school system with a modern high school, grammar schools and junior high for every white and negro child in the city.

For the next 10 years, the mayor said, the objectives were to follow through the program, with extensions of streets and sidewalk paving, improving the school system, balancing the city's budget, making necessary improvements in fire and police departments and other things that "will make Americus a happier, more healthy and desirable place to live, worship and raise a family."

Dionne Quints May Replace Soviet Show at N. Y. Fair

TORONTO, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Visitors to the New York World's Fair next summer may get a peek at the chubby Dionne quintuplets on the site of the Soviet pavilion which won't be there.

Papa and Mama Dionne are all for showing the little girls at the fair but some opposition has developed amongst their guardians.

"The World's Fair is nibbling, but we have had no direct proposition yet," Percy D. Wilson, official guardian for the Ontario government and member of the quints' board of guardians, said today.

Another guardian, Judge J. A. Valin, of North Bay, commented:

"They won't go to New York with my consent. It's too risky. We shouldn't let them out of the country."

Premier Mitchell Hepburn, of Ontario, said the decision was up to the board of guardians and Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, the quintuplets' physician. Dr. Dafoe would have nothing to say until a definite bid was forthcoming from the fair.

MRS. M'REE FREED OF MURDER CHARGE

Merchant's Wife Was Accused of Shooting Mate While on Auto Ride.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 10.—(AP)—A Clarke county superior court jury acquitted pretty Mrs. Bruce McRee tonight of murder charges growing out of her husband's slaying.

The blonde Mrs. McRee, in an unsworn statement, testified the shooting occurred while she struggled with her husband, a Watkinsville merchant, for possession of a pistol during an automobile ride through a residential section of Athens October 15.

The prosecution charged Mrs. McRee shot him to death to keep from facing another man, whom the husband had accused her of dating.

Mrs. McRee testified that she married McRee while she was a student in Athens High school and that he had always been extremely jealous. On several occasions, she declared, he had threatened her life.

A capacity courtroom heard Solicitor General Henry West read the verdict after the jury had deliberated three hours.

ASPIRONAL DELIGHTFUL PALLIATIVE for COLDS

CAMP FOLLOWS UP TIP BY ROOSEVELT

Will Seek Specially Designed Post Office in Warm Springs.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A specially designed post office building for Warm Springs, Ga., and the polio victims interned there, is in prospect if Representative A. Sidney Camp, of Newnan, is successful with a bill which he will introduce shortly in the house for that purpose.

The new building project was indorsed by President Roosevelt when he made his last visit to his "second home" in Georgia last Thanksgiving. The chief executive remarked to Mr. Camp, who represents the Warm Springs district, that officials of his "second home" had never asked him for any improvements, but that if he could, he would give them a new post office building.

Mr. Camp thinks a new post office building should be provided with a special entrance and other unusual conveniences designed to serve paralysis victims.

HOSPITAL ROW LEADS TO MASS RESIGNATION

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A total of 34 physicians and surgeons had resigned today from the Sydenham hospital staff of 260 doctors, after an intra-hospital dispute over announced personnel changes.

The mass resignations followed a difference of opinion among some members of the medical staff over the exercised authority of the lay board of directors in the hospital's management.

TWO BUZZARDS DELAY CRACK TRAIN AN HOUR

BALTIMORE, Jan. 10.—(AP)—An hour's delay of a crack New York-Washington flyer, as well as undetermined damage to an engine, was laid by Pennsylvania Railroad officials today to the blundering of a pair of buzzards.

The birds flew into the cab of an electric engine, became tangled in the wiring, disabled the mechanism and held the train up for an hour until a replacement engine could be sent. The birds were electrocuted.

ATLANTA, GA., JANUARY 11, 1940.

The Vital Underpass

It is impossible to conceive of any project within the bounds of Fulton county more urgent and more essential to the safety and wellbeing of the people than the proposed underpass, beneath the railroads, on North avenue, west of Marietta street.

The present grade crossing has been described as the worst in Georgia, if not in the entire south, and the record of fatal accidents there is tragically long. It is a list, too, that is growing rapidly. Accidents, not all fatal to be sure, but all costly in suffering and in property damage, come with sickening frequency.

One of the most tragic aspects of the situation is that the federal government has had an appropriation of $485,000, all ready and waiting, to build the desired underpass at this point, for five years.

The only thing lacking has been $135,000, which must be provided locally, to acquire necessary rights-of-way. Why the five-year wait has been necessary will always be a perplexing mystery to the man on the street. It has been a delay directly responsible for every accident death at this crossing in those years, for every dollar's worth of damage done and for the incalculable suffering and sorrow which has come to those injured and to the families and friends of the injured and the dead.

Now, it is reported, all stumbling blocks have been removed save one. With one more official action, the work can begin. Two railroads have contributed $10,000 each. The city has appropriated its half of the balance, $57,500. The only thing lacking is appropriation by the county of the remaining portion, its share to equal that of the city, $57,500.

It may be that this appropriation will necessitate some new juggling of the county budget for 1940. It may be a difficult task, to find the money needed. But, when all things are considered, it is unthinkable that the money should not be forthcoming, somehow.

For the building of this underpass is more important, more urgent, than many other governmental undertakings. It means more to the citizens of Fulton county than development of parks, recreational centers and beauty spots. It means more, even, than the paving of many roads. It means, in short, the difference between safety and pressing danger, between life and death, for citizens and for visitors passing through the city. When, from a cold-blooded business angle, it is also remembered that this comparatively small appropriation will make certain the expenditure of ten times that sum on a project here, it becomes also the course of economic wisdom.

Under these circumstances it cannot be doubted the county board will find a way to provide the money. It may take a few hours of perplexed study over the 1940 budget. But a way will be found and, in the meantime, it will call only for a little public patience.

After waiting five years, it should surely not be difficult to wait a few days longer.

But, if new accidents occur during unnecessary delay, the responsibility must rest upon anyone who procrastinates.

Good in All Men

Fifteen convicts in Anatolia, scorning escape, risked their own lives to rescue more than a thousand women and children who were buried under debris and wreckage when temblors shook Turkey. Now, a grateful government seeks pardons for the convicts, terming their action during the quake "magnificent courage."

The record of their actions reveals the men as rising to heights of self-sacrifice, as well as courage. The men, who were serving long terms in the barracks of Erzincan prison, organized rescue squads and dug for days in the ruins of the town, the hardest hit by the quake that brought death to at least 45,000 persons. The convicts not only rescued victims, but cared for them and housed them in what remained of the prison.

It is fitting that pardons have been recommended for these men. The sins of their past certainly were wiped out by their actions during the quake. That the men rose highly to the tragedy is further evidence that there is always "good in the worst of us."

Question for a certified public accountant exam: If 130,000,000 people owe more money to themselves, are they richer or poorer?

Sources of Strength

Atlanta and Georgia are particularly fortunate in the happy combination of strength and progressiveness which characterizes their financial institutions. For many years the banks of Atlanta have been famous throughout the nation. Even in the "bank holiday" period now nearly a decade back in history, they met the crisis far better than the average and, since then, have gone to new strength and new fields of co-operation with the economic life of the community.

The present-day position of the local banks is due, primarily, to wise management and alert interest in the affairs of the community. Even the federal laws which nowadays guarantee security of bank deposits and other funds take second place, in this state, to the inherent stability of the institutions themselves.

Of recent days annual reports by many of the banks have been made. The banks of Atlanta have reported on highly satisfactory dividend payments, on increases to surplus and other evidences of financial impregnability. New officers, to fill gaps inevitable as time moves on, have been chosen, generally from the personnel ranks of the institutions themselves. The community, as a whole, has every right to be proud of her banks.

One popular institution, the Fulton National bank, this week marked the 30th anniversary of its founding and the story of its growth is a story of the certain prosperity that comes of wise direction and properly balanced policies for such an institution.

But the record speaks alike for all. The First National, the Citizens & Southern National, the Trust Company of Georgia, alike have proven themselves during the years and alike will continue as one of the strongest group assets for the business and industrial development of city, county and state.

Home Building

Barring an unforeseen and catastrophic business recession, 1940 should mark an all-time record in the construction of small homes in the United States. The past two years have demonstrated the ability of modern builders to provide an excellent house, a home, at a cost below $5,000. This year, expanding employment, higher wages and a general feeling of greater stability will re-open a vast market, limited only by the vision of men and the facilities available.

A few factors may operate against a continuing record of home construction. The most important would be an unwarranted increase in the cost of building materials, a favorite theme whenever construction is on the upgrade. Probably the second most important would be a lowering of the standards of construction now demanded both by lending agencies and purchasers. Another would be the mushroom growth of fly-by-night building operators, an element which already has made its appearance but which has been kept under control by legitimate builders and real estate firms and by the Federal Housing Administration.

But, generally speaking, the outlook is for a year which many believe will be better than that of 1925, which saw a peak in the construction of new homes in this country. Some 750,000 dwelling units were built that year, most of which were in the high-priced field. By 1933 the market had dropped to 40,000 units, but with the development of the lower-priced field the curve began a new climb, until today the greater proportion of construction is in the field around $5,000 and less.

The experience of last year has proved the full market has as yet been barely touched, that properly planned subdivisions and individual construction can be made profitable by a higher-than-usual ratio of turnover resulting from the great demand which is the result of easier financing and lower sale prices.

Public confidence, reasonable costs, proper planning and general recovery has opened a rich market. If the mistakes of the past are not repeated, building should have a banner year.

Editorial of the Day

A VICIOUS CONDITION.
(From The Detroit Free Press)

The state of Pennsylvania is about to negotiate a trade treaty with the state of New York.

Commonly we think of trade treaties as agreements concluded by and with foreign countries.

The framers of the Constitution contemplated absolute free trade among the several states, which would make trade agreements between them unnecessary.

Yet in recent years many states have gone in for trade barriers, tariffs and discriminatory taxes to an extent that threatens to make them "foreign" to each other.

The consequences of this trend are bad politically and economically.

States that discriminate against trade from other states are bound to create ill feeling.

And, if they carry their discrimination far enough, they are also bound to hamper industry and commerce.

The economic system of the United States has been built up as a single unit, with all parts of the country making their peculiar and proper contributions to it.

That cannot endure if any or many of the states set out to make themselves self-contained.

A leading cause of the distress and discontent that led up to the present war in Europe was the break-up of the Austro-Hungarian empire into a lot of little states, which immediately proceeded to erect trade barriers around themselves.

Whatever else it was, Austro-Hungary was an economic unit, which could not be destroyed without far-reaching economic consequences.

And neither can the economic system of the United States be broken up into 48 different systems, without producing chaos and disaster.

A condition that requires states to negotiate trade treaties with each other cannot be corrected too soon.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

RUSSIA IN BEGGING ROLE WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The State Department's closest attention is currently concentrated on Russia's frantic efforts to obtain German support in the attack on Finland. Interest is so great for a simple reason—what Hitler will or won't do to help Stalin is the best possible commentary on the character of the Russo-German alliance.

So far, American observers are delighted to note, the Russians have been asking a lot and getting very little. The Russian pressure on Germany began some time ago, with the first big Russian defeats in Christmas week. Ever since then, the Soviet ambassador to Berlin, A. A. Shkvartseff, has been trotting back and forth between the Wilhelmstrasse and his embassy, making anguished arguments for more aid. The original position in the Russo-German alliance has been completely reversed; Stalin is now the beggar and Hitler the giver, where it was just the other way around before Finland was invaded. Concern is so ill-concealed in high Soviet circles that not long ago there were reports that Premier-Foreign Minister Molotoff himself would hurry to Berlin to present his demands in person.

DOUBLE GAME Naturally, the Russians want neither troops nor supplies. They have plenty of both, although their organization is so bad that there is reason to believe they would like some expert German staff officers to help plan their offensives. Their major demand is for the Germans to put the heat on Norway and Sweden, to prevent supplies reaching the Finns.

Thus far, in the belief of the best-informed men here, the German response has been to play a double game. The German navy has joined the Baltic blockade of Finland, which is unimportant, since most supplies enter the beleaguered little country by land. The German ministers in Oslo and Stockholm have emphatically informed the Norwegian and Swedish governments that they will not stand for the admission of large numbers of French or English troops to Finland, which is obviously in the German interest.

Ostentatious warnings against the transit of important shipments of arms to Finland have also been conveyed through diplomatic channels and the German press.

But, simultaneously with the warnings, the Wilhelmstrasse has tipped the wink to the Swedes and Norwegians to pay no attention.

Supplies for Finland are flowing in through the Swedish and Norwegian ports, and should soon begin to arrive in quantity at the Finnish railway centers, Tornea and Haparanda, objectives of the disastrous Russian campaign in the north. Meanwhile, the unfortunate Ambassador Shkvartseff is being politely told that everything possible is being done.

Such is the substance of the situation as known here. The interpretation put on it is that the Germans are trying to keep their old Italian friends happy, catering to their violent anti-Soviet feelings, yet making gestures to satisfy the Russians too. It is even doubted if the Germans would have done what they have if they did not fear a Franco-British flank attack through Finland.

TWO SCHOOLS At the time of the invasion of Finland it was noted here that both schools of thought in the State Department accepted the German reaction as the real test of the meaning of the Russio-German pact. One school, it should be remembered, has argued that the pact was a purely strategic move, only intended to frighten England and France, and sadly disappointing to Hitler in the outcome. The other school has held that the pact was a serious offensive and defensive alliance, the object of which was the overthrow of the British Empire.

Germany's response to the recent Soviet demands is now taken as indicating that both schools have some truth on their side. Within Hitler's circle of advisers, so the most authentic reports go, the same division of opinion exists as among American observers.

The conservatives, led by Goering, are said to hold the pact merely strategic, to be insistent that the catering to Italy continue, and to hope to see Finland give Russia a good trouncing. The radicals, among whom Von Ribbentrop is still probably the most important, are represented as giving the pact great importance, and desiring to extend substantial aid to the Russians. It should be noted, however, that the conservative attitude toward Russia is said to have softened somewhat, since the exposure of Russia's military incompetence suggests that concessions to Russia might be taken back later on. Indian-giving is one of the chief methods of power politics.

How Easy To Crash!

An object lesson in the necessity for constant care, knowledge of traffic regulations and full acquaintance with your city, came my way yesterday morning, while driving to town.

Was comfortably bowling along a new and perfect stertch of paving, approaching a cross street. Another car was coming at about the same speed up that cross street, in full view. And neither of us slowed up.

Finally, a fraction of a second before we would have crashed, I suddenly jammed on my brakes—luckily they are in good order—and stopped the car so suddenly it killed the motor.

The other car kept on, without slackening speed, and I glimpsed the surprised and reproachful faces of its occupants.

Not until then did I remember that the stop sign, at that intersection, faced my way and the other car had the right of way.

I had just forgotten it, and failed to notice it, in my own contented progress toward town. That was all. There would have been no intent to smash the other fellow—and myself—if tragedy had occurred. But it would have been my fault, entirely. There was clear view and the other fellow was right. I was wrong.

You can't be too careful, now can you?

No One Injured.

It is to be feared that people sometimes get the impression newspapers fail to publish news which should be in their columns. When, as a matter of fact, there is not sufficient news value in the incident involved to make it worth the space needed.

On Monday, January 1, we were driving home after a week-end trip to Florida. Between Savannah and Macon, on that much traveled Highway 80, we came to a place where a large passenger bus had gone in the ditch. There was an open travel lane, coming north, and we were delayed only by the necessity of slow travel for a mile or so. The southbound lane, however, was blocked by the wreckers trying to get the bus out of the ditch. There must have been a couple of hundred cars, headed south, blocked and waiting, more or less patiently, in line. The bus was in quite a deep ditch, on its side, and every window glass, it seemed by passing glance, was smashed. In short, with the effect of the wreckers and the highway patrolmen and the long line of blocked traffic, it looked to the casual observer like a really serious smash. And there must have been thousands of those casual observers during the day.

Yet, those who scanned the columns of The Constitution, for instance, the next morning, found no mention of a bus in the ditch. To the contrary, they found a report from the state highway patrol for that section of the state declaring there had been no serious accident over the entire week end in any of the counties of the division.

And, it is safe betting, a few of those who had seen the situation on the highway, thought either this paper or the state patrol was failing to report an event that should have been in the news columns.

Yet, as a matter of cold fact, the accident was so insignificant it wasn't news.

Damage Slight.

True, the bus went into the ditch. But the damage was confined almost exclusively to those broken windows. A hundred dollars or so would cover it.

And there were no injuries. No one was killed, no one was hurt. And you must concede that the news value in traffic accidents consists almost exclusively in the amount of death, injury and destruction which is caused.

The state patrol was correct in reporting no accident worth mentioning for that division and the news editor was right in considering the bus incident unworthy of mention.

Even though it did delay the southward progress of quite a few vehicles for quite a time.

Must Be Asleep In West Virginia.

A correspondent from West Virginia has been writing letters on the subject of increased consumption of cotton. To help the cotton south, you know. But what do you think is the big, startling idea she brings forth?

That manufacturers should make dress goods with attractive print patterns so women could wear dresses made of cotton material!

I wonder what they wear in West Virginia already? Will have to visit there and find out. Perhaps they're nudists.

Twenty-Five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Monday, January 11, 1915:

"According to Dr. J. L. White, the new pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, modern times have revised Scripture to the extent that it is now the prodigal father instead of the Biblically famous prodigal son."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Saturday, January 11, 1890:

"Mr. T. L. Gantt has sold the Elberton Star to Messrs. L. Schevenelli and F. A. Williams, of Athens."

Just a Technicality.

They strutted until a passerby took a close look.

"State of Arkansas," said the wording on the badges.

Fast Service.

In Pueblo, Colo., three minutes after a description of a stolen car was broadcast to patrol cars over the police radio system, Patrolmen Harvey Neilson and Horace Hutcherson recognized the machine on a downtown street and took the young driver into custody. He readily admitted stealing it.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Looks Like Dirty Reds. NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—We-all baby-havin', 'tater-hoin', God-fearin' Americans are not a-goin' to take kindly to the abandonment of inter-collegiate football by the University of Chicago.

If there is anything a little more American than anything else it is intercollegiate football, and this decision to haul down the grand old flag, so to speak, looks like the work of the dirty Communists. I would not be surprised to learn that it was inspired and engineered by the same cunning plotters who seduced that illustrious, stall-walking, intellectual alumnus of the midway, Mr. James Vincent Sheean, to sign a manifesto exculpating Moscow, just before Josef Stalin took a full swing at Finland and missed.

In speaking of Finland the adjectives "brave," "poor" and "glorious" are to be taken for granted. I call Finland for short only to save tolls.

The trouble with the University of Chicago is that the students have gone in too much for high-pressure thinking. I once sat in on an evening of mental scrimmage there under the direction of Head Coach Robert M. Hutchins, the grand old man of ratiocination, and it was easy to see that this was a killing game for young and immature minds. They would read a passage out of an old thought-book, and the grand old man, or wizard mentor, of ratiocination would call on one member of the squad to tell what this thought meant.

But Then They Asked— That was not so bad. That was just straight-away, longshoreman's thinking. But then they would ask the student to tell what it meant sidewise, backward and upside down, and before the poor kid was excused for his shower and rub they would have him doing half-gainers, spinners and standing-sitting jack-knives over some proposition that never should have been given a second though.

The thinking squad staggered out of the room groggy, and it is no wonder that so many lettermen and women of the thinking squad left U. of C. with cerebral trick-knees and thought with a decided limp in after life, especially on rainy days.

Some veterans of intercollegiate football write an annual magazine piece, usually entitled "Was it worth it?" in which they take occasion to remind a forgetful public that they realy were all-Americans long ago. They then dig up all the old cases of charley horses, twigfracture and cauliflowered cerebellum that have occurred in football in a quarter-century and cry "no" a thousand times.

Young And Dumb. They were young and dumb at the time, and they thought the glory, the varsity letters and clippings which they accumulated were worth the risks and hurts. Now, however, they are wiser, and so they decry football, but they nevertheless preserve as priceless trophies to be handed on to their sons, if any, the dusty helmets and cracked old football shoes which they wore on the varsity and their football letters and scrapbooks. They do this in the identical spirit of those retired brigadiers whose only distinction was earned in war and who delighted in war but now decry it as a beastly business, yet cherish their medals and brittle old citations from the commanding officer.

Much that passes for college thinking in reality is nothing but worrying, and the graduates of the schools which produce good football teams are quite as happy and as useful for all practical and spiritual purposes as the furrowed and thought-scarred veterans who are emerging from the University of Chicago. The European schools have always emphasized thinking, and the result is told not in progress or happiness but in the war news today.

In this country the University of Wisconsin, Chicago and the city of New York are proud of their indifference to football and noted in equal parts for their feebleness at the game and the number of perambulating headaches which they have inflicted on the nation.

No Communist ever made all-America or even earned a varsity letter, and the memoirs of the college Communists show that they all are misfits and much disliked in school and plainly suggest that the males are jealous of the campus hero and the females jealous of the cutie with the swell pair of legs who strutted with the band between halves.

Sandwich Clue.

"There is a funny man in a car parked outside my house," said a woman to Tulsa, Okla., police on the telephone.

"I think he may be a burglar. He has been there for three hours and now he is eating a sandwich."

Officers found a brother detective on watch for a bootlegger. The call had come from the house he was watching.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

EUROPE'S WAR NEWS. BRRRRR! There can't be a proper newspaper lead to this because I want to start off with Maury Maverick and then move on to a fellow I met in the Mayflower cocktail lounge at Washington and then to the news from Europe.

Maury Maverick is in our town for a lecture tonight at Georgia Tech. It ought to be worth-while because Maury Maverick is worth-while. He is the gadfly of Texas politics. He speaks his mind and has something to say. I do not imagine they can keep him within the original confines of any lecture. He was in congress and his foes beat him for re-election. He came back to become mayor of San Antonio. This was worse. His foes preferred him in Washington and were sorry they had beat him for congress. They had him indicted on a fake charge and a Texas jury turned him loose very quickly indeed.

At the time the emergency session of congress was convened, I was in Washington. Washington was laughing at a Maverick "bon mot." His "bon mots" are bricks. And not so "bon."

The President likes him. The story went that Maverick called on the President, expressed a hope we could stay out of war, reminded the President that he, Maverick, had been lucky to come out of the other one war and that his son might not be so lucky. The President reminded him that he, the President, also had sons.

"Well," Maverick drawled, "If war comes I hope Elliott is the first one of your sons that has to go."

The other incident has come back to mind with some emphasis because of the news from Europe. It looks as if the real horror in Europe is but a few weeks, or days, away.

PLANES, SIX TO ONE The evening before congress convened, we were sitting around the Mayflower lounge talking when a group came in and stopped for a visit at our table.

One of them was a gentleman who had been with the French air force in the World War; had later gone with the Americans when we came in; had then flown in Russia and later had helped organize the French air force and led the squadron against the Riffs when France had to come in to save Spain.

He was somewhat in his cups, and he was telling about planes. He knew Hermann Goering well and had visited Goering in Germany two years ago.

He insisted Germany had planes six to one and that as the war then stood England and France could not win it. He was most emphatic about the advantage and said it also included pilots.

One can hear almost anything in Washington. There were stories that England and France were catching up. I thought perhaps the flyer merely had been making conversation.

Recently, from an authoritative source, there has come word that Germany still has five to one and that the real horror of war, the bombing the cities, is surely to come. The source pointed out the first efforts would be directed at British shipping.

A day after hearing it the attacks came in greater numbers than ever before and continued through yesterday. One may be sure that the bombing of cities is ahead.

NOT A PRETTY PICTURE The Allies have on order 5,000 planes from American plants. These must be delivered.

It begins to look as if it undoubtedly is true that Germany still has a great superiority in the air. It has been well demonstrated, yesterday providing another example, that bombing planes must be accompanied by fighting planes if they are to be effective.

There is renewed activity on the coast, in shipping. The British blockade of Germany apparently is not entirely successful.

It begins to look as if England and France have about 18 months of work ahead before they can catch up mechanically. This explains the heavy diplomatic struggle. England and France would make peace quickly if any government but a Hitler government were to come to power.

If Stalin can be discredited and Hitler removed by internal opposition, then peace would come very quickly. Hence the real effort to help Finland. The war may turn on Finland. Indeed, the course of the entire world may turn on Finland.

It is not a cheerful picture. The real horror of the war in Europe apparently is inevitable. Hitler probably will strike before the first large shipment of American planes arrive in Europe.

Meanwhile, one fact is apparent. They do not need our men. And won't. They most emphatically and desperately need our machines and munitions.

When the Bronze Hardens It Can't Be Reshaped Until It Is Melted Again

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Bill Jones was one of life's unfortunates, a man born with an infinite capacity for self-indulgence and equipped with a troublesome conscience that never ceased to reprove him.

While yet in his teens, he chafed under the restraint of parental authority and left the farm to seek his fortune in the city. But he never found complete freedom, for discipline of some kind is everywhere, and he gave up many good jobs before he learned that nobody can do exactly as he pleases without paying more than the privilege is worth.

In his private life he did as he pleased and gave no thought to consequences. He made love to girls for the fun of love-making, but left them promptly when they seemed to have designs on his freedom. He learned to drink, and when his friends showed evidence of disapproval, he found new friends of another kind who had more tolerant standards. He preferred losing friends to losing his liberty.

He was not wholly free, of course, for there was no way to be rid of his conscience. It worried him every night and growled at him every dismal morning after, and once or twice a year, when he had indulged himself more than usual, it shamed him till he was sick with remorse.

On such occasions he was depressed and gloomy until he resolved to change his ways, and thereafter he enjoyed a few days of spiritual exaltation and believed himself a new man.

So for twenty years he sinned and reformed, sinned and reformed, until at the age of forty he made a discovery that shook him like a blow on the chin. His habits had jelled. Life had become mechanical. And no matter how much he repented and resolved to reform, he slipped back into the same old rut within a few hours as though hypnotized.

Bill was scared. He who loved freedom above all else now found himself no longer his own master. He could no longer do as he pleased unless he pleased to drift.

One night in the spring he walked in quiet residence streets, searching his soul for a way of escape. "I'm sunk," he muttered: "I have surrendered to every desire and weakly indulged myself until it's become second nature. I can't make myself over. It's too late. If only I could go back to the beginning and live my life over. If only a man could start again."

Bill's aimless walk had brought him abreast of a little community church, where the choir was at practice. Through the open windows he heard the long-forgotten word of an old song: "Verily, verily I say unto you: Ye must be born again."

JOINT MERIT PLAN IS URGED BY DEEN

Welfare and Labor Officials To Meet With Rivers for Discussion.

Braswell Deen, director of the State Department of Public Welfare, will meet with Labor Commissioner Ben T. Huiet and Governor Rivers Wednesday to discuss a joint merit system for the welfare and labor departments.

The department of labor is already operating under a civil service merit system, Deen pointed out, and the welfare board also must come under a similar system, under a revision of the social security act passed at the last congress.

To set up a separate merit system for the welfare department would cost the state from $20,000 to $25,000 a year, Deen pointed out, and for that reason a joint system with the labor department is being sought.

The Wednesday conference was set yesterday at the monthly meeting of the welfare board. Those present, beside Mr. Deen, were Arthur Lucas, chairman; Dr. J. R. Wilson, of Thomson, Dr. Lloyd Lott, of Hoschton, and A. T. Minchew, of Pearson.

GOOD MORNING -:- By Louie D. Newton

SONGS IN THE NIGHT.

Many years ago in Scotland, a Christian layman was making an overnight train journey. It was before the days of sleeping cars. Into the section of the car where this layman was seated came a man with his wife and little boy. The man was drunk, and caused quite a disturbance for the entire car. The conductor announced that he would put the man off the train, but for the fact that it would leave his wife and child helpless in the night.

"Let me try to manage him," suggested the Christian business man to the conductor. And with that, the layman began singing in low, sweet voice, some of the cherished hymns of the Christian faith. At last he came to Charles Wesley's great hymn:

"Other refuge have I none;
Hangs my helpless soul on Thee;
Leave, ah, leave me not alone,
Still support and comfort me.
All my trust in Thee is stayed
All my help from Thee I bring;
Cover my defenseless head
With the shadow of Thy wing."

Presently, the drunk man was quited. The litle boy was asleep in his mother's lap. The father finally went to sleep. With the coming of the dawn, the train reached its destination, and as the father was awakened, he thanked the gentleman who had done so much for him, and they parted.

Years passed, and one day there came a knock on the office door of the Christian layman. In walked a man of excellent personality, and beside him a handsome young man.

"Do you remember us?" the elder gentleman inquired.

"I believe not, but tell me, please, your names," replied the business man.

"I am the man who got on the train 15 years ago one night with my wife and little boy. I was drunk and was a nuisance to everyone, and you told the conductor that you would try to manage me. You sang to me. Remember? And you sang to me about One who loves even a sinner like me. I accepted Jesus as my Saviour that night. Later my little boy accepted Him as his Saviour, and we are in Glasgow today to enter him in the seminary. He has been called to preach the Gospel which you sang to us that night."

The young man was Joseph Parker, for many years the eloquent minister of the London City Temple. Dr. W. Holms Coats, now president of the Baptist Seminary at Glasgow, told me this story as he sat in my study last July, while in Atlanta for the Baptist World Congress.

TWO MINERS KILLED IN COAL MINE BLAST

through to some long-unused, gas-filled entry.

(The Department of Mines at Charleston said Bartley No. 1 was gaseous but was thoroughly rock-dusted).

On the western side the tunnel leaves the foot of the shaft and runs back several thousand feet and branches.

Sturgiss fixed the possible location of the explosion in the "Main 6" head, from which "four left" branches, and the time at 2:20 o'clock this afternoon. He said:

25 Have Better Chance.

"Twenty-five men in the fourth left have a better chance than any others, providing the explosion occurred in Main 6, and indications are that is true."

United States Bureau of Mines rescue cars were ordered from Eckman, McDowell county, and from Pittsburgh. Oxygen equipment was on hand at the shaft mouth, manned by crews ready to help any who were brought out alive.

N. P. Rhinehart, chief of the state mines department, who had been attending a safety meeting in Pittsburgh, was en route to the mine.

Rescue Progress Slow.

Progress toward the blast sector was slow and mine department officials said the ventilating system had to be rebuilt as the crews moved ahead. The main ventilating system of the mine continued in operation, however.

(At Charleston H. G. Houtz, chief engineer for the department, said the chances were "slim" that the men had been able to build barricades and conserve what pure air remained in the affected areas).

There were reports that the known death list was seven but both company and mine department officials said nothing was known of the fate of the men, except for the two found dead a half mile in.

Roy Ashworth, a motorman, was almost at the foot of the shaft at the time of the blast. He said he did not hear it because of the general noise but that "a big cloud of dust rolled out over me."

A crowd of between 1,000 and 2,000 persons stood outside a roped area 300 feet from the mine, warming themselves at bonfires while they settled down to wait for word from the bottom of the shaft.

Wives Await News.

Another enclosure was roped off about 75 feet from the tipple and into this area gathered more than a hundred wives and relatives of the men caught below.

Hastily strung lights brightened the area around Bartley No. 1, the glow reaching to hundreds of cars parked on the highway across Dry Fork.

E. J. Stalling, general manager, joined Salvati in vigil at the telephone while Superintendent W. M. Haslam joined the crews digging away a mile back in.

Officials said the men known dead apparently had disobeyed orders and were walking out of the mine. The rule is that although work is finished the men must wait and come out on the regularly scheduled "man trips," hauled by mine motors.

Meager Phone Connection.

Bartley's only telephone is connected with the mine company's office and it was two hours before news reached Welch, closest city, that "something had happened" at the mine.

H. G. Houtz, chief engineer of the State Mine Bureau, said in Charleston that the mine normally employs about 250 men.

The mine is located in the heart of the rich southern West Virginia mine fields about 18 miles from Welch, five miles north of the Virginia border and 25 miles east of the Kentucky line.

The main shaft is sunk about 500 feet straight into the earth and corridors fan out from that shaft at various depths. Some reports reaching Welch said the blast had rolled through three corridors.

The Pond Creek Corporation, affiliated with the Island Creek Coal Company, operates three mines around this isolated village of 2,000 persons. Crews were recruited from other operations to aid in the rescue work.

Cool to WPA Union

79 Per Cent of Public Against Organization, Dr. Gallup Finds

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP.
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 10.—Despite the fact that most voters throughout the country have accepted the principle of labor unionism, a national survey of public opinion indicates that the majority have apparently not yet accepted the idea of unions among the unemployed workers on relief.

In a press conference last month President Roosevelt expressed the opinion that while persons on relief had a right to organize into unions, they had no right to strike. To find the attitude of the public on this question, the American Institute of Public Opinion put before voters in a national survey the two issues posed by the President.

The results show that while the majority agree with the President in opposing relief strikes, they do not agree that relief workers have a right to organize into unions.

The specific questions in the national cross-section survey of the public were as follows:

"Should people on WPA be allowed to form WPA unions?"

Yes	21%
No	79

"Do you think people on WPA should have the right to strike?"

Yes	15%
No	85

Only one person in ten, on the average, expressed no opinion on these issues.

This vote does not mean, however, that labor unions in general are condemned; it is only the extension of unionism to relief workers that has not yet been accepted.

The voters, judging by their statements, regard the relief program as having an entirely different basis from ordinary labor in private industry and for that reason consider that union principles do not apply. Thus, the most frequent comments are that "WPA is a form of charity," that the "government and the taxpayers are simply trying to take care of these men, and are not bargaining for labor the way an employer does."

BILLION-DOLLAR HOLDING COMPANY TO REORGANIZE

Associated Gas & Electric Files Application in Bankruptcy Court; Can Not Meet Bond Interest.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Associated Gas & Electric Co., top holding unit in the $1,035,000,000 Associated Gas Utility System, filed application to reorganize in federal court at Utica, N. Y., today, the biggest power combine to seek protection of the bankruptcy courts since the collapse of the $5,000,000,000 Insull utility empire in 1932.

The company controls electricity, gas, water, transportation and other public service concerns in New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida, and has two operating units in the Philippine islands.

Another Expected.

In company circles it was said a similar petition would be entered without delay by the Associated Gas & Electric Corporation, billion - dollar subsidiary holding concern of the A. G. E. Company.

Forcing the top unit of the system into the courts was the matter of lack of cash to meet a $262,400 interest payment on outstanding bonds, officials said. The company has outstanding $11,686,500 of 4 1-2 per cent debentures, maturing 1949, and interest amounting to $262,400 was payable on these bonds next Monday.

The company, officials explained, seldom keeps over a few thousand dollars on hand in its treasury. It had been the custom for funds to be passed on up to the top company.

SEC Changes Custom.

However, all this was changed last November when the Securities and Exchange Commission ordered subsidiaries to halt dividend and interest payments to the top company "to protect the financial integrity" of the various operating units.

The SEC previously had asked the company to file a plan of reorganization. A corporate "streamlining" plan eventually was submitted, but the SEC held the plan unsatisfactory because it "attempted to sustain a too extensive capitalization without evidence of sufficient earning power or property to support such a capital structure."

The Associated Gas System today is made up of around 172 companies serving 6,200 communities with a population of 7,000,000 persons.

SEC SAYS RECEIVERSHIP TO AID SOUND COMPANIES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The Securities Commission choked off the income of Associated Gas & Electric Co. today shortly before it filed reorganization proceedings. The commission prohibited Associated Gas & Electric Corporation from paying dividends on its capital stock or $557,000 interest on a note held by the parent company.

Roger J. Whiteford, Washington attorney who became president of A. G. E. company last month, said the system "has in it today more cash than at any time for several years."

Commissioner Robert E. Healy said the effect of receivership should be beneficial, because it "ought to free the sound operating companies."

SLEUTH LOSES SUIT FOR TOPPING BONUS

Judge Declares Evidence Growing Out of Divorce 'Proof' Is Insufficient.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A federal judge today threw out of court the suit filed by a private detective to collect a $5,000 bonus he said Henry J. (Bob) Topping, Tin Plate heir, owed him for obtaining divorce evidence against Topping's first wife.

The detective, Harold Mayhew, said Topping had promised him a $5,000 bonus "and expenses" for proof of infidelity on the part of the first Mrs. Topping, now Mrs. Richard Durant.

Judge Clarence G. Galston said he felt insufficient evidence had been shown to merit the bonus.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

MAVERICK REVEALS CLEAN-UP SECRET

erick went back to San Antonio, got himself elected Mayor, and got out the ax.

He fell upon the city health department first and kicked out everybody who was in it.

"It was full of old, fat politicians who didn't know a microbe from a microphone," Maverick said. "They sat around and drew fat salaries while the town suffered from everything that flesh could be heir to in the way of disease. I threw them out and got me some sanitary engineers from over at the University of Texas and I put them to work.

"Then I got rid of the old exbutchers who were supposed to be doing the meat inspection for the city. I sent over to Texas A. & M. and got me some young veterinarians and told them to get in there and get our meat plants operating safely. Before they started our meat was excluded everywhere. Now we can sell it anywhere in Texas. Our standards of inspection are as high as those of the federal government.

Chief From North.

"Then I lit in on the police department. I threw out the chief and got me a young Yankee chief, the first Yankee cop ever seen south of the Mason and Dixon line. But he cleaned up the police department. He learned his trade at Northwestern University and he knew what was what.

"The first six months we cut our traffic death rate by 41 per cent and the last six months we cut it by 75 per cent.

"We still don't know what to do about vice. We at least chased the ladies off the street and back into the old section that has been there for 200 years. We aren't grafting on them and we aren't harrassing them, but we are seeing about their health. They get in trouble if their health department cards aren't clear.

"We are going to get somebody down there from the National Council of Social Hygiene and see what they advise.

"I've had my troubles. The gang I threw out get me indicted, accusing me of paying poll taxes for people. I went to a jury with that and came clear. They've still got 14 indictments pending against me, but I've got that business licked.

"I'm here a day early to look over your town. I want to see what you do here better than we do it in San Antonio.

"I want to see your cyclorama and all that. But mainly I want to see your housing projects and your slums, if you have any left, which I imagine you do have. We are just about to launch one of the biggest slum clearance projects in the country down at our town, and I want to see what's been done here. I may get some ideas."

Asked if he had any desire to get back into the national political arena, Mr. Maverick said he was in no hurry.

"Old Bob LaFollette stayed out six years and went back a senator," he pointed out. "I'm finding that I'm mighty deeply interested in municipal government. I'm worried about that now, not the state of the nation. I don't think there are any great problems actually facing the nation."

He thinks President Roosevelt will be the Democratic nominee for President.

"People scream against the third term, yet they don't have anybody else to suggest. Mention Garner to them and they tear their hair hollering 'No.' Mention McNutt and they have a fit. Mention anybody else and they shake their head. Roosevelt is the only one they seem to have any regard for, but when you say 'third term' they howl. It's a pity no other great national figure has risen as a presidential possibility."

The debate in congress on the anti-lynching bill aroused his ire.

The sooner that thing passes and gets out of the way the better," he said.

Tells Story.

He illustrated his point with a story.

"It's just like the big negro boy, fighting the little negro boy," he said. The big boy kept knocking the little boy down and the little boy kept getting up and getting knocked down again. Till finally the big fellow said.

"'Boy I wisht you'd quit gittin' up and making me knock you down again. Or I wisht you'd knock me down one.'

"I listened to my good Yankee brothers debate about the poor persecuted negro when I was in congress and it made me sick at my stomach for I knew they didn't give a whoop about the poor negro. And I listened to my southern brothers pour out the oratory about the insult to the fair name of the south and it made me sicker.

"The lynching issue is a dead issue. If they'd go on and pass the blamed bill and get it out of the way nobody would ever hear a word about it any more.

"It's no real issue now. It's just a symbol, a fetish."

The outspoken Texas mayor is a character. He met the press barefooted, wrapping his chubby feet in a hotel blanket to keep them warm. He's a short fellow with huge shoulders and a gargantuan bay window which he swears at as if it were something entirely apart from himself over which he has no control. He accentuates its great girth with a huge belt buckle of Mexican silver.

He seems to love people—particularly the down-trodden masses, yet he is disgusted with their lack of intelligence.

"They get into trouble. They have nothing, no education, no jobs, no food even. And instead of trying to find out some sound economic solution for their troubles they go traipsing off after some fool theory like this ham and eggs thing. I get more mail than any man in the United States except the President, I'll bet, and half of it is from nuts with half-baked money magic which they think will save the country.

L. V. BEAN TO RETURN TO POST IN WAYCROSS

PADUCAH, Ky., Jan. 10.—(AP)—L. V. Bean was informed yesterday of his election to the city managership of Waycross, Ga., a position he held six years before coming to Paducah.

Government Says Huge Difference in Reported and Actual Money.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A federal grand jury today indicted William Bioff, 41, on an income tax evasion charge. Bioff is spokesman for most of the movies' organized labor groups.

The indictment charged Bioff reported an income of $5,720 in 1936 on which he paid a tax of $105.92, but that his actual income was $33,573.25 on which a tax of $4,384.93 should have been paid; and that in 1937, his income was actually $176,416.38 on which a tax of $80,250.49 should have been paid, but that he reported only $7,205 and paid a tax of $193.08.

Bioff's attorneys, Michael G. Luddy and George M. Breslin, said he would surrender tomorrow. They said, "We assume that the indictment involves the matters which were investigated several years ago by the Sacramento (California) county grand jury, by the legislative interim committee on capital and labor and for the last several weeks by the local federal grand jury. . . . We feel that Mr. Bioff's complete innocence . . . will be definitely established in due course."

DRIVE ON SPIES IN PLANTS TOLD

Complaints of Sabotage Against Liners Disclosed by J. Edgar Hoover.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Plans for protection of 430 vital industrial plants against sabotage and espionage were disclosed today in testimony by J. Edgar Hoover before a house appropriations subcommittee.

Revealing secrets of the spy hunt, Hoover said informants had made complaints of sabotage against certain large ocean liners, in support of a $1,475,000 deficiency for the FBI, approved today.

Hoover also told the committee that complaints relating to defense increased from 250 in the fiscal year 1938 to 1,651 in 1939. Comparatively few complaints are without substance.

The bureau has compiled indices of persons engaged in subversive activities.

A general intelligence division with a translation section and code section has been created to coordinate all army, navy and FBI counter-espionage work.

The army and navy have compiled a priority list of 430 plants which are being inspected to determine whether they are properly protected. In wartime the list would be expanded to 12,000.

The FBI also has compiled a manual of plant protection, "the first manual of its kind ever prepared in this country."

LIVESTOCK VITAL TO SOUTH—PAPY

Good Meat Not Question of Geography, He Says.

The future of southern agriculture rests, to a large extent, on the development of the livestock industry, E. S. Papy, president of the White Provision company, told members of the Atlanta Advertising Club at their regular meeting yesterday.

Good meat is not a question of geography, but of breeding, he explained, and southern meats can be of the same quality as those of the west.

"I do not say this to discount in any way the value of western meat," Mr. Papy said. "I bring it up only to point out that desirable meat is not a question of geography, but of breeding."

Tired of Being a 'Sardine,' Man Smacks Subway Guard

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(UP)—After four years of "being packed into subway trains like a sardine in a can," John Brooks, 38, of Green Farms, Conn., revolted today. He punched the convenient nose of Matthew Walsh, a subway guard.

In magistrate's court he pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct, then explained that the strain of a subway ride after a long commutation run had been too much to bear.

"When the subway train came in this moring," he related, "I was on the fringe of the crowd and this guard got behind me and began pushing. He pushed and pushed and got me half way through the door.

"Then the door started to close on me. It hit me on the shoulder while Walsh was still pushing and I lost my temper.

"I know I did wrong, but I've been taking this pushing around and being packed into subway trains like a sardine in a can for four years. It finally got me down."

Sentence was suspended.

POSSIBLE 'SPYING' IS CHARGED TO KLAN

Seized Records Said To Indicate 'Espionage Service' in Industrial Plants.

ANDERSON, S. C., Jan. 10.—(AP) J. Henry Jeanes, chief of the South Carolina constabulary, said tonight that seized records of the Ku Klux Klan indicated one of the chief purposes of the organization was to act as "an espionage service" in industrial plants.

Jeanes said copies of records had been given to United States District Attorney Oscar Doyle as the basis for a possible federal investigation to determine whether the Wagner labor act, prohibiting such espionage, had been violated.

Klan records and correspondence were seized last week with the arrest of Fred V. Johnson, of Greenville, chief of staff to the grand dragon of the knights of the Ku Klux Klan in South Carolina. Jeanes made the seizures and arrest under orders of Governor Burnet Maybank who demanded prosecution of a band of robed and hooded men who took Lanier Pruett, a mechanic, from his home and flogged him the night of December 27.

SWEEPING STUDY OF U. S. FINANCES VOTED IN SENATE

House Appropriations Group Reported to Have Erected Bar Against Increases in F.D.R.Budget

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Led by an embattled economyite, Representative Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, the house appropriations committee was reported today to have erected a bar against increases in the Roosevelt budget, while the senate voted a sweeping fiscal study.

The house group, it was said, voted to forbid its subcommittees to increase the sum total of any money bill beyond the amount recommended by the White House. This, it was explained, would hamper attempts by legislators to jack on such appropriations as the $225,000,000 for farm parity payments voted last year. Woodrum was understood to have made the motion which led to today's action.

The resolution approved by the senate was offered by Senator Harrison, Democrat, Mississippi, who said it would help start a retrenchment program which might lead eventually to a balanced budget. Under it, a senate-house committee of 24 members would study the Roosevelt spending and tax recommendations and make its own recommendations in 60 days.

The resolution passed on a voice vote, without audible dissent, but some expect it to die in the house. In that case, Harrison may suggest that a 12-man fiscal committee be set up in the senate alone.

Meanwhile, possibility the navy's $1,465,000 emergency building program in Florida would be trimmed developed today when the house appropriations committee voted a $500,000 cut in a lump sum requested for temporary construction. The navy asked $7,500,000 for the whole program.

Alien Coalition May Attack Americas, Stark Declares

Warns 'Size of Navy We Now Have' Could Not Defend Hemisphere 'Comfortably' Against Group Such as Germany, Italy, Japan, Russia.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Admiral Harold E. Stark warned the house naval committee today of a "distinct possibility" that the western hemisphere might face an attack by a coalition of foreign nations.

Meanwhile the appropriations committee approved, with slight exceptions, the defense and neutrality outlays authorized by President Roosevelt in his proclamation of a state of limited national emergency at the outbreak of the European war. It recommended a deficiency appropriation of $267,197,908 to enable the army, navy, coast guard and bureau of investigation to carry out increased duties under that proclamation until June 30.

The "size of navy we have now" could not defend the hemisphere "comfortably" against attack by such a group of powers as Germany, Italy, Japan and Russia, Stark testified.

Testifying cautiously, Stark began his discourse with an explanation of a $4,000,000 appropriation proposed for harbor improvement at Guam, Pacific island near Japan, without a request for specific authority from congress.

Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, declared that he would challenge on the house floor the navy's right to make the improvements without specific authorization but Stark said that navy vessels and planes would continue to use the Guam harbor, in spite of hazards, whether the funds were voted or not.

(Vinson's warning came during a session of his committee featured by testimony by Stark that the 25 per cent increase in naval forces proposed in a $1,300,000,000 bill sponsored by Vinson would not guarantee American safety in event of attack by a combination of "have not" powers, the United Press said.)

ANTI-LYNCH BILL PASSED BY HOUSE

York city's teeming negro section, Harlem, is a part. He proposed the elimination of language making the bill inapplicable to any violence resulting from a labor disturbance.

Representative Pace, Democrat, Georgia, making it clear that he opposed the bill, offered an amendment to exempt from the penalties counties in which lynchings occur after the victim has been brought in by the mob from elsewhere. Proponents of the bill argued that such counties could not be held liable and the amendment was defeated, 57 to 79.

The bill—denounced by southerners as impractical, unenforceable and unconstitutional and upheld by its supporters in the antonyms of those words—seeks to eliminate lynchings by imposing penalties on peace officers negligent in protecting their prisoners from lynch mobs and by making the municipalities and counties liable for damages.

The principal interest and the most extended discussion centered upon an amendment by Representative Colmer, Democrat, Mississippi, which he called the "gangster amendment." This would have made the penalties apply to gang murders.

Asserting that last year there were three lynchings in the entire United States and 272 murders in New York, Colmer asked, "Why should we worry with a mere detail, a mere bagatelle?"

WOMEN SUPPORT RAMSPECK'S BILL

League Urges Approval of Civil Service Measure.

The Georgia League of Women Voters, calling attention to "Civil Service Week," January 14-20, yesterday urged approval of Representative Robert Ramspeck's civil service measure as making "possible the inclusion of approximately 250,000 positions in the merit system."

The league sent letters to the Georgia congressional delegation suggesting "the appropriateness of acting on the Ramspeck bill during Civil Service Week."

SKY-WRITER'S PLANE CRASHES IN MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 10.—(AP)—A sky-writer's plane caught fire over Miami and crashed in a roaring power dive in a vacant lot beside a busy street shortly after noon today while the pilot descended 6,000 feet in his parachute to a safe landing on an apartment house roof near a school.

Excited school children swarmed from their classrooms and cheered lustily as the pilot, Art Davis, 45, calmly gathered up his parachute, walked down a fire escape and entered an automobile for a ride to a hospital. Thousands of other persons witnessed the midday drama.

ARMORED CAR GUARDS AMERICAN IN SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Fearing an attempt on his life, municipal authorities provided a bullet-proof automobile today for Cornell S. Franklin, American chairman of the Shanghai municipal council.

Last Saturday gunmen tried to kill C. Godfrey Phillips, British commissioner general and secretary of the council. Phillips escaped unhurt.

Senator George Asks Check On Election Costs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, asked the senate today to establish a special committee to police this year's election of a President, vice president and senators.

As chairman of the senate committee on privileges and elections, the Georgia Democrat introduced a resolution to establish a special campaign expenditures committee, similar to one that operated during the 1938 election under chairmanship of Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas.

DEPORTATION BILL SPY-FIGHT WEAPON

Russell's Measure, Now in Conference, Aimed to Curb Sabotage in U. S.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
Staff Correspondent.

WASHTONGTON, Jan. 10.—Senator Russell, chairman of the committee on immigration, today said that enactment of his alien deportation bill, if signed by the President, would be a powerful deterrent to foreign agents in this country who may be engaged in espionage or sabotage.

The measure passed the house unanimously during the last regular sessions and is now in conference.

The measure undertakes to add to the classes of offenses for which aliens may be subject to deportations, the crimes of espionage and sabotage for a foreign government. It makes mandatory the deportation of any alien who has been guilty of either of these offenses.

When the measure was up for passage in the senate, Senator Taft, of Ohio, a Republican candidate for the presidential nomination, sought to weaken it by inserting an amendment that would require an alien to admit in writing that he had engaged in espionage or sabotage before being deported. The amendment was defeated.

Japanese air services are now operating on frequent schedules between Japan and the occupied areas in China.

Protests Filed Against Murphy Appointment to Supreme Court

Chairman Burke Says Committee May Hold Hearing If Volume of Complaints Is Sufficiently Substantial.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A number of protests against the appointment of Attorney General Frank Murphy to the supreme court have been filed with the senate ujdiciary committee, Senator Burke, Democrat, Nebraska, said today.

Burke, who is chairman of a subcommittee named to consider the Murphy appointment, said he would call this group together tomorrow morning to go over the protests. He added that if there was "any substance to these complaints" the committee probably would hold a hearing.

The British Industries Fair, which was to be held in London and Birmingham in February, 1940, has been canceled.

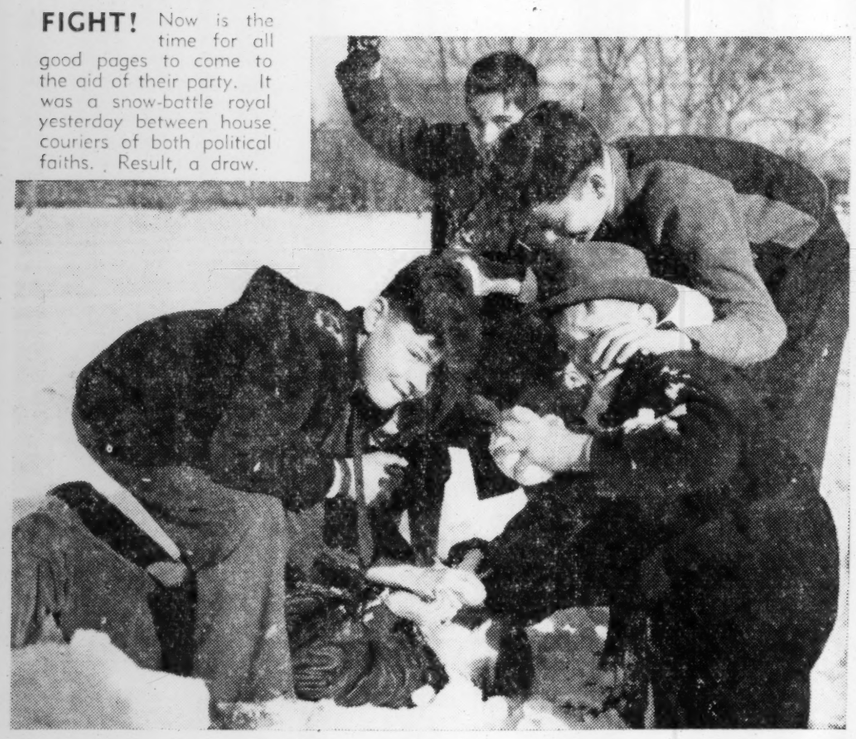
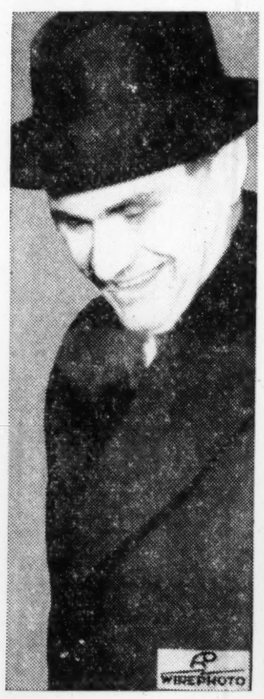
'Ain't Mad at Nobody'—But...

FIGHT! Now is the time for all good pages to come to the aid of their party. It was a snow-battle royal yesterday between house couriers of both political faiths. Result, a draw.



SNOOTFUL They got this young fellow down on the ground and gave him the old face-wash at one stage of the Capitol page boys' fracas. It was fought out in the shadow of the dome. (AP photo)



HOW? In Washington yesterday Hitler's pal and consul, Fritz Wiedemann, was trying to figure out a way of getting Nazi sailors back home to Germany after they scuttled the liner Columbus in waters off our east coast.

OOPS! It's a spiller-diller, and look at the assorted expressions of amazement, etc., as the pyramid tumbles down. 'Twas thus yesterday out at North Avenue Presbyterian School gym as belles of the campus lined up for a lesson in acrobatic symmetry—and it just goes to show that the best of them will slip a grip now and then. So quick was the disaster that the young ladies at right seem unaware of it. But look below, now.

BRITISH BOMBERS RAID GERMAN SEA AND PLANE BASES

Three Battles Fought Over North Sea Island and at Helgoland; London Says Ship Missing.

LONDON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Fast new British bombers struck back today at Germany's air and sea strength, raiding German air bases on the North sea island of Sylt and an important Helgoland anchorage, in swift reply to the first warning lightning of the vaunted Nazi "blitzkrieg."

The crash of anti-aircraft fire, vivid flashes, the dancing pencils of searchlights and the roar of many planes told observers on the nearby Danish coastline and islands of the first battle over Sylt, shortly before dawn.

Reports from various sources indicated there were at least three battles over Sylt and one at sea, above Helgoland Bight. The Sylt battles were before dawn. The air fight over the sea was believed to have occurred about 1 p. m. (6 a. m., Atlanta time).

Residents of the Danish town of Tonder said they believed the British bombers had scored hits on the Hindenburg causeway which connects Sylt with the mainland. All train traffic from Sylt to the mainland was stopped.

The air ministry announced one British plane had been lost in a half hour running fight "far out over the North sea."

This compared with German contentions that three out of nine British Bristol "Blenheim" bombers had been shot down over Helgoland Bight by four German planes.

The British communique said one German fighter had been shot down and forced to land in Denmark.

It was indicated from Danish advices that both sides had infringed that country's neutrality.

Red Air Chief Given Transfer

MOSCOW, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Mikhail M. Kaganovich, commissar for Sovet Russia's aviation industry, has been relieved of his duties and "transferred to another post," the official Tass news agency announced tonight. His successor is M. Shakhurin.

Britain Protests Neutrality Act

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Great Britain has protested to the United States that the neutrality act is discriminating against her ships, it was learned today.

The protest, understood to have been presented by the British embassy, complains the neutrality act requires transfer of title to goods carried on British (or other belligerent) ships to certain portions of the globe, but does not require it with regard to neutral ships.

Germany Plans Pay Holdbacks

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Das Schwartze Korps, organ of the Hitler elite guards, asserted that unless more money were saved for use in paying for the war a forced economy would be necessary. It said a spending wave was sweeping the country.

The organ said that one plan under consideration to force workers to save was a payment of wages partly in certificates which would come due some years hence.

S.S.S. Tonic is the choice to increase the appetite...to boost energy

COUNTLESS thousands of men and women can testify to the benefits S.S.S. Tonic has brought them.

In S.S.S. Tonic you go after the trouble in two ways . . . first you increase the appetite and better your stomach digestion—thus making better use of the food you eat—secondly, thin, weak, watery blood is made rich and red again thus giving you a boost in energy.

Abandoned Horses Frozen to Death as Russians Flee

Acme Radio Telephoto.

Russian soldiers rode the fine horses into Finland, confident of a swift and glorious victory. Here they lie, frozen to death on a northland battlefield, an exclusive and graphic picture story of the Russian retreat.

Reds Hurled to Own Soil At Four Different Points

Finns Reported To Have Trapped Another Russian Division; Defeated 44th Was One of Soviet's Crack Outfits, Evidence on Dead Reveals.

HELSINKI, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Finnish troops in central Finland were reported to have surrounded a new Soviet division today after hurling the remnants of the routed Red army's 44th and 163rd divisions back into Russia east of Suomussalmi.

This third Russian division was reported trapped at Kukkammo, about 60 miles south of the recent victories at Suomussalmi.

The Finns set up positions along 30 miles of the Russian frontier east of Lake Kianta and Suomussalmi. This covers four points at which Finland has thrown the invaders back onto their own soil.

A Finnish communique said that a Red army battalion had been dispersed northeast of Lake Ladoga with the enemy leaving "200 dead on the field." The Finns took 40 prisoners.

Associated Press Correspondent Thomas F. Hawkins, with the Finnish army at Raate, reported the Russians in full flight as the Finns drove right up to the border in cleaning up operations.

It was the first time the Suomussalmi sector had been cleared of Russians since the war started.

Hawkins, recounting the huge war stores left on the battlefield by the fleeing Red army, said that evidence on the bodies of the dead Russians indicated the 44th division was one of the Red army's crack units engaged in the Polish campaign.

He found the town of Suomussalmi completely demolished by savage warfare.

A Finnish colonel at Raate told the Associated Press that Finland's losses in the battles against the 44th and 163rd divisions were comparatively small, "although there are casualties, of course, in a heavy battle." Thousands of Russians were reported killed and more than 1,000 captured.

U. S. Ambulances Reach Finland

HELSINKI, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Four American volunteers arrived at the Finnish port of Turku from Stockholm today with two ambulances and were assigned immediately to an undisclosed sector of the front.

The quartet: John F. Hasey, Bridgewater, Mass.; F. Lewis Bartlett, New York City, and Robert H. Newman and William B. Mock, both of Chicago.

Cancel Finn Debt, Senate Urged

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP) Senator McKeller, Democrat, Tennessee, today introduced a bill providing for cancellation of Finland's debt to the United States. The measure would be effective as of December 1, 1939, and calls for the return to that republic of any payments that may have been made since that date.

$10,000,000 Credit Given to Norway

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP) The United States today extended credits of $10,000,000 to Norway—a step widely regarded as another effort to bolster Scandinavia in the face of the Soviet Russian invasion of Finland.

Officials compared it with $10,000,000 advances to Finland shortly after Russia moved against her.

ROBERTS AND RFC TO MEET ON LOAN

Georgia Delegation Plans To Accompany Official Today to Market Parley.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Georgians are seeking a half-million-dollar federal loan toward the cost of building a public market in the state.

Preliminary work on the RFC application is being done by Alton Cogdell, director of the State Bureau of Markets. He said the project, whose location was to be decided later, would cost about $1,500,000.

Columbus Roberts, commissioner of agriculture, was due here for a breakfast conference with Georgia's congressional delegation Thursday.

Cogdell said the whole delegation probably would accompany Roberts to the RFC for a conference with Chairman Emil Schram. He said Judge Duke Davis would be here to represent the state attorney general's office.

PETROLEUM GROUP SENDS HEAD PRAISE

Commissioner Is Lauded for Increased Collections.

A letter of congratulations from the Georgia Association of Petroleum Retailers was forwarded yesterday to State Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head, congratulating him on an increase of $2,000,000 in state gasoline tax collections for 1939.

Guy P. Icomb, president of the association, explained that early in 1939 the association estimated the state was losing $2,000,000 per year on bootlegged gasoline.

The organization has favored legislation for tighter control and made recommendations for enlargement of the motor fuel tax-collecting agency of the revenue department.

GAS MAIN BLAZES ON PONCE DE LEON

Large Crowd Attracted as Escaping Fumes Ignite.

A freak fire yesterday drew hundreds of spectators to Ponce de Leon avenue and Scott boulevard, when gas from a broken 10-inch main became ignited, sending flames shooting out of "traps" along the curb.

Officials of the Atlanta Gas Light Company said damage was slight. An emergency crew working from a maintenance truck extinguished the blaze with chemicals. Gas company officials said melting ice probably was responsible for the break in the main.

The main, a feeder to Decatur, and containing eight pounds of pressure per square inch, was cracked about a quarter inch. Service to Decatur was not interrupted. Automobile traffic in the vicinity was delayed during the fire fighting operations.

Magnetic Mine Patented in '25 By U. S. Officer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Congress learned today that a naval officer was granted a patent in 1925 for a magnetic mine similar to the type reported to be in use by Germany.

Rear Admiral W. R. Furlong, chief of naval ordnance, said that Commander Glennon, in charge of the navy's mine laboratory, obtained the patent, but that the navy never used his mine.

WHERE WILL STORM OF CONFLICT BREAK?

French newspapers, show that the Germans are busy strengthening the fortifications on their side of the line, as the French are on theirs. This suggests the Germans will not risk a suicidal frontal attack.

Where will the surplus of the vast armies on the western front, not necessary for defense, be used? There has been much speculation about a German thrust by way of Switzerland or through Holland and Belgium. In that case, the Anglo-French front will be broadened for resistance and counter-attacks on a longer line.

Finns May Point Way.

If we dismiss this prospect, the Finns may have pointed the way for future action on land. Chamberlain's statement that Britain's aid to Finland "will be not a mere formality" may eventuate in more than the response of world opinion to Finland's gallant fight. It may mean the storm will break on frontiers not yet counted as at war, that the Allies will be at war with Russia.

There is the bruited plan, dubiously authenticated by vague reports of captured Russian maps, by which Russia was to strike through northern Finland across Norway and divide Scandinavia with Germany. The German navy could control the Gulf of Bothnia for the landing of troops in Sweden, shutting Finland off by ship, and rail too, from Allied aid.

The Swedish government has stated, in the name of a brave people who have a first-class little army, that they will resist any effort by any power to occupy their ports as bases or make their country a battleground. But facts are facts. In case this danger became real, Sweden would be in the position of Belgium in 1914.

"Aux Armies!"

Belgium knew that if Germany occupied Belgium she would hold her subject for good. Victory for the Allies meant the preservation of her independence as a nation. King Albert of Belgium spoke his "aux armes!" on the Allied side. So, if the test comes, lively old King Gustav may say "to arms!" with the same intent, and his soldiers will surely give any unwanted guests a tough reception.

But we have reports of a significance to be considered that the Soviets now contemplate only holding their lines on the Finnish front since their troops have found the Finnish winter climate and the Finnish skiers such unpleasant hosts.

Granted that Adolf Hitler paid the price of Russian possession of Finland for the Russo-German pact, then Joseph Stalin may choose to let the conquest of Finland wait and strive to recover his lost military reputation in a Russo-German offensive in the Balkans, where his Asiatic hordes would fight under sunnier skies more to their taste.

Germans in Pretoria, South Africa, have made preparations to leave for Germany at a moment's notice.

Superior Court Filings and Fees Break Records

The year 1939 proved a record-shattering one for the office of the clerk of Fulton superior court with filing and fee collections reaching a 10-year high of $158,652.79, according to a report filed yesterday by J. W. Simmons, the clerk. Last year's collections were approximately $141,000.

Following is a record of 1939 filings: Real estate transfers, 14,921, amounting to $26,348,191; mortgage loan deeds, 9,725, amounting to $28,852,337; cancellations, 7,727, amounting to $32,517,476, and personalty bills of sale, 76,171, amounting to $21,692,265.

DIXIE GRAIN RATE REVISION IS URGED

Examiners Request I. C. C. for Permanent Scale; Reductions Also Ordered.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—(AP)—A revision of rates on grain and grain products within the southeast, long in effect, today received the approval of two Interstate Commerce Commission examiners.

The examiners recommended that the commission itself formally approve the rates.

After once suspending the rates, the commission allowed them to become effective July 13, 1936, but continued an inquiry into their "lawfulness." The examiners, in effect, recommended that the rates be allowed to become permanent.

Rate experts said the case has no relation to the south fight for what it calls "rate equality."

STATE AUTO DEALERS ELECT ATLANTA MEN

Three Atlanta automobile men were elected officers of the Georgia Automobile Dealers' Association yesterday at the concluding session of the annual convention, held in Augusta.

Hal Smith was named vice president, E. G. Beaudry was elected treasurer, and L. L. Austin was re-elected executive secretary. Henry Darling, of Augusta, succeeded Leo Huckabee, of Macon, as president.

French Experts Think Russia Will Soon Attack Rumania

New Battlefront Believed Near by Competent Observers; Preparations for Combined Nazi-Red Invasion Hinted; Defense of Balkan Nation Termed Difficult.

By WILLIAM BIRD.

For North American Newspaper Alliance.

PARIS, Jan. 10.—A new battle front in southeastern Europe will be opened up shortly and the possibility is that fighting may take place on more than one sector. This is the considered opinion of competent observers with whom this writer has discussed the situation.

Russia is expected to begin a drive against Ruman which probably also will be synchronized with a German attack on that country. It is understood here that the Stalin-Ribbentrop agreement, made last August 23, provided for partition of Rumania in much the same manner as Poland was divided, giving Bessarabia to Russia and Transylvania and Valachia to Germany while the fate of Dobrudja is left in abeyance pending the result of efforts to get Bulgaria to join the aggressors.

Russia is expected to use the same tactics against Rumania as she used against Finland, beginning by setting up a puppet government in Bessarabia and then marching in on the pretext of delivering the Bessarabians from their oppressors. It is pointed out that the Russians will have fewer difficulties here than in Finland as the best Soviet troops are concentrated in this region.

Rumania's only natural defense here is the Dniester, which, however, can be turned on the north, and that apparently is the Russian plan, according to observers. Another factor in Russia's favor is that she has naval supremacy in the Black sea, while a third trump in Joseph Stalin's hand is Rumania's need for guarding other frontiers simultaneously, whether or not Germany or Bulgaria intervenes.

Allied assistance to Rumania will be rendered automatically, it is felt here, and she may also expect aid from Turkey. In the latter case this will mean opening up another front of operations in the Caucasus. Presumably a considerable Allied fleet would be sent to the Black sea, by agreement with Turkey, where very speedily it could drive Russia's fleet into harbor. But whether such aid could be given before Rumania is overwhelmed is a debatable point.

BONHAM MADE HEAD OF S. C. HIGH BENCH

Fish and Milk Eaten Together Said Harmless

The common idea that fish and milk eaten at the same time would poison the consumer is without scientific foundation, Dr. Elizabeth Gambrell, bacteriologist, told the Atlanta Association of Better Restaurants at a meeting yesterday.

Dr. Gambrell, head of the department of bacteriology at Emory University, spoke on "Food Poisoning," as the first phase of the restaurant organization's 1940 program of protection of the public through health and sanitation.

Foods that are thoroughly cooked seldom contain harmful bacteria, she told the restaurateurs. She added that restaurants whose kitchens are sanitary are seldom the source of food poisoning because contamination is a result almost entirely from unsanitary conditions.

Scandinavians Our Kind Of 'Guys', Declares White

By WILLIAM L. WHITE,
Special Correspondent.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (By Mail: I've got to tell you something I think you should know about these little northern countries, Sweden and Denmark and Norway and Finland, and this is how very much our kind of guys they seem except for language and how, when you see them, you realize that the language doesn't matter.

The important thing is that they think like us and act like us and they read our books and go to our movies and listen to our music and work and talk together and are as simple and as democratic as a New England town meeting, only more friendly, and that they have been that way for centuries.

Like us, they have no colonies, and, like us, they don't want to muck around in this European balance-of-power racket. They just have wanted to keep out of it and govern themselves, through free elections, and listen to the radio and read free, uncensored newspapers and honest books, and eat well and dress decently and enjoy life.

Maybe you don't think that is asking much, but it is asking a lot in Europe today, if you are little nations surrounded by cannibal nations, as they are.

Now every Swede is prepared to go out and die for these things if he must—and every Swede knows that he must, and that the day is not far off, maybe only a few weeks or months; and every Swede knows that it cannot do too much good, because these are such small and weak countries except in character and liberty and democracy and culture and freedom and industry and fair play and things like that which do not count for so much against gangster nations who want none of those things.

Swedes Bring Back Pride.

There is another point about these northern countries, and the Swedes with whom I have mingled in particular, and that is that they have made me again proud that I am by race a Nordic, because if you had listened, as I have in the last 30 days before coming here from Germany, to all the cheap claptrap about race, you would have been ashamed (as I was) to belong even to the same animal kingdom. You would have wished, as I often did, that you were either a fish or a cauliflower or something utterly different from the racketeers who are using race as a pretext for bothering their betters and stealing from their neighbors.

Because, when you talk about Nordic blondes, the Swedes are so much blonder than . . . well, now, take, for example, the Germans (just for instances, of course), who, by contrast, look like a tribe of African Ubangis from the headwaters of the Congo, and I might add that the Germans on occasion behave in the same way.

But these people have no inferiority complex. Therefore, these Swedes disdain to use the fact that they are blond as the basis for a cheap racket. They see no reason why a blond, just because he is one, should go out and begin bothering everybody else.

Race's Product What Counts.

The Swedes believe, as we do, that a race is important only if it can produce a large number of intelligent, kindly, hard-working, co-operative, cheerful and sensible individuals, and I am here to tell you that these little northern countries have given the world far more than their fair quota.

And, having seen the Swedes, I have become very tired of hearing the Germans bellyache around about how Germany has been robbed and Germany has been kept down and Germany is oppressed, so therefore, Germany must go out and rob and keep down and oppress a lot of other people.

Because these little northern nations have made for themselves one of the highest cultures and most decent living standards in the world, not because their countries are rich—mostly icebergs and fjords and rocks, in fact—but because the people worked hard and managed well and exchanged on a fair and honest basis with other nations.

Quick relief from the maddening itch of eczema, psoriasis, poison ivy, and irritation about the rectum or personal parts is obtained by applying Resinol Ointment. Leave it on over night. It lessens the desire to scratch, and eases the irritation.

The soothing effect of Resinol takes the sting from the irritated places and makes you more comfortable. The skin heals sooner, too, with the help of Resinol, as its oily base holds the medication in active contact with the tortured parts.

For gentle cleansing of irritated skin, Resinol Soap is excellent because it has no excess of free alkali and is so refreshing. Many nurses suggest and use Resinol Ointment and Soap—why don't you try them?

FULTON GETS FUND FOR ADULT CLASSES

County's WPA Education Program Will Continue; 7,491 Taught Last Year.

Approval yesterday of a $1,136,588 allocation for the WPA adult education program in Georgia will insure the continuation of classes in Fulton county which last year attracted 7,491 adults.

During 1939, 78 teachers were employed on the project to give instruction in work ranging from instruction to the blind to agricultural vocation.

A total of 451 adults were taught to read and write in literacy classes conducted as a part of the program. Other types of instruction the local program embraces includes home and family life, commercial vocation, first aid, workers' education and naturalization instruction for foreigners.

In addition to the adult program, the WPA educational project in the county also includes four nursery school units. Last year, 104 children from families certified to receive some form of public assistance were enrolled monthly. The program is administered by Miss Jane VanDeVrede.

WATCH AWAITS 'HOBO' ROBBED BY NEGROES

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 10.—(AP)—If the young Augustan who rode a Georgia freight train some weeks ago will call on M. C. Haynie, special agent for the Georgia railroad, he may recover a gold watch.

It seems that during the "free" ride two negroes robbed him of the watch and a nickel. Since then the negroes have been arrested on another charge. They had spent the nickel but police recovered the watch.

Haynie said he would return the timepiece, make no charges against the youth and expect only his co-operation in checking on the negroes' story.

Story of Borrowing Ruler's Plane To Take Pictures Laid to Ex-Red

Dozenberg Pleads Guilty to Misuse of Passports; Federal Authorities Relate Strange Story of Military Intrigue in Europe.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—Nicholas Dozenberg, a recanting Communist, said by the government to have been a member of the Soviet secret police, pleaded guilty today to misuse of passports obtained through false representations, and indicated he would testify against his erstwhile American party chief, Earl Browder, on similar charges.

At the same time, federal authorities said privately he had told an extraordinary story along these lines: Dozenberg went to a European country, carrying an American passport and by taking photographs of certain ladies of the court so ingratiated himself with a friend of the ruler that he wangled an introduction to that dignitary. Then, through the ensuing friendship, he was able to borrow the ruler's own airplane to take pictures of military value for the Soviet Union.

PARTISANSHIP, STRIFE ASSAILED BY WILSON

SUMMERVILLE, Ga., Jan. 10. (AP)—Georgia must assume leadership in economic development of the southeast or lose it to some sister state, Secretary of State John B. Wilson told Rotarians here today.

He appealed for a "state consciousness" with laying aside of "the tools of internal warfare."

"Partisanship and factional strife are our greatest internal enemies," he said.

FUGITIVE ARRESTED.

MARIETTA, Ga., Jan. 10.—Jan. 10.—A negro listed as an escaped Dade county convict was held here today in connection with three checks forged on Marietta merchants. Deputy Emmett Marler, who questioned the suspect, Alvon Williams, reported the negro fled from Dade county last October after serving less than 10 days of a sentence. Marler said the negro admitted writing and cashing the three checks.

Wife Must Half Responsibility For Happiness

By Caroline Chatfield.

There are scads of married women who know they don't want what they've got in life; but they aren't quite sure what they do want and so they make no definite plans to pull out of the bog of disappointment into which they've fallen along the marriage journey route.

They are the women who expected marriage to yield them blissful happiness, and when marriage didn't, they quit and began to cry out loud because life had cheated them. No design for living, no plans to find compensations on the outside for what they missed inside, nor effort to piece out the pattern of their lives and lead a useful and reasonably contented existence, even if they are married to duds.

Day after day I receive letters from women who bring every sort of indictment against their husbands; one husband has no interest in his home; another is stingy, another drinks, gambles; another won't talk; another won't provide any nourishment for his wife, but takes plenty for himself; another has eyes for other women. And at this particular time of year there are innumerable complaints from hunting widows who say that the family surplus goes for dogs and shells while they wear old clothes and sit at home in the ashes waiting for the huntsmen to return.

No matter how these men got this way, no matter who is at fault in the beginning, it's perfectly natural for a woman to be disappointed when the principal things she got married for have eluded her; a home built for two and enjoyed by both, companionship, security, fun and whatnot. But that's no excuse for her to fold up and admit she's licked.

We can't blame an ignoramus for failing to enjoy good books, nor blame a hardworked woman who is in poor health for falling in her bed when the day's work is done, nor blame a timid, inhibited woman for not going out to scare up an exciting social life. These are not for only ladies who are crying out loud because husbands have cheated them. They are a small fraction of the number.

There's hope for every one of these marriage malcontents, regardless of her limitations, if she will get up and fight her way to contentment. To begin with she can usually persuade her husband to participate with her in some phases of their life (if she's diplomatic and patient); and to end with she can learn to roll her own; have friends and fun on the side and make a reasonably full life for herself, even if her husband won't cooperate or participate.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

APRON SILHOUTTE FOR EVENING: Muriel Angelus, of the films, is wearing this black taffeta evening gown. Over the voluminous circular skirt is an apron of the same material, cut in petal outline and embroidered boldly in gold thread.

Star's Red Oilcloth Slacks Start New Fad in Hollywood

By Sheilah Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10.—I like the apron silhouette on the evening gown worn by Muriel Angelus at the Cocoanut Grove. The dress of stiff black taffeta featured an extreme decolletage with string straps of the fabric. A voluminous circular skirt swished out below the apron of the same material, cut in petal silhouette and embroidered boldly in gold thread.

Rosemary Lane started the fad for oilcloth slacks. Now Priscilla has gone in for them, too. Priscila's are bright red oilcloth, the table-cloth variety, worn with a black silk shirt that has her monogram in red on a tiny collar. Such wearable material saves the knees of fabric slacks and can be sponged clean in a moment.

Lana Turner owns a cute hat suitable for the dance floor. It is a fabric bandeau turban to which a tiny felt bowler is fastened with old-fashioned hatpins. The hat served a twofold purpose. When dancing, the young Metro starlet takes off the bowler and leaves the bandeau. When she dines, the hat is pinned back on.

Talking about Lana's hats, you won't need a spotlight to find her in the dark, when she wears her dinner hat of quilted white velvet. The chapeau—topping a sleek black velvet dinner dress—is a pillbox and anchored by a coarse black snood.

For her new spring ensemble, Rita Johnson (who has just finished in "Congo Maisie") has chosen a four-piece suit comprising a blouse and skirt of a print whose ground is matched to a skirt and jacket of plain wool. The print skirt is the full, flared kind, and is worn with a soft blouse, while the wool jacket and skirt are more of the tailored type. They can be switched around for a variety in ensemble.

Merle Oberon's midseason wardrobe has three shirtwaist frocks, each boasting an entirely new silhouette for this type of garment. A low waistline distinguishes one which has a skirt in a gay Hawaiian print on a wide hip yoke. The waist in white chiffon shows brilliant carved navy buttons down the front.

For an informal dinner that's still slightly dressy-up, Merle wears black crinkle chiffon with a row of artificial emeralds down the entire front and wraps her own high-flung turban out of green wool.

Brilliant stop-red high lights another get-up for desert wear. The frock, in pin-striped blue and white seersucker, shows a peg-top skirt that forms wide pockets lined in red. The sandals and bag are in bright red linen.

Too magnificent to be overlooked is Merle's gown made of white plumes. This is an exact copy of one she wears in "We Shall Meet Again." The skirt, a bouffant, is made entirely of plumes, the bodice a tight swath of white grosgrain.

More news of pockets. With rain just around the corner, Jane Bryan is prepared with a gray rubberized velveteen raincoat. The set-on pockets are tiny gray umbrellas lined with bright green, and her own initials form the green handle of a gray transparent umbrella.

Twenty-two thousand shots were fired at 11,000 targets by the 150 competitors in a recent trap shooting contest in Baku Azerbaijan.

Peacetime industries in Japan using more than 10,000 tons of coal a year have been ordered to reduce use of the fuel 10 to 20 per cent.

The days just aren't long enough to accomplish all the things you'd like to do. And what a blessing it is to find a pattern that's a time-saver in making, in laundering, in wearing! Pattern 4287, by Lillian Mae, is just that. It buttons on in a jiffy, and spreads out flat for easy handling in stitching up and ironing. The skirt is panelled, front and back, with bias-cut sides. The waistline is nicely fitted and there are darts.

Pattern 4287 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 Size 16 takes 4 3-4 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

If a frivolous indulgence, as a scented bath, sacheted lingerie, perfumed hair, makes you feel rather precious, the indulgence is thoroughly justified.

It's Annoying, Being Shocked So Easily

By Dr. William Brady.

Fortunately, when I was a boy in Canandaigua the physics class, under Professor William Bennett, by dint of brisk friction, on rare days in the school year, contrived to get up enough static to produce a faint snap, shock or discharge on contact with a door knob, light fixture or another body. Otherwise I'd dismiss all the complaints I receive about the body being full of electricity as crackpot fancies.

Dear Doc. Brady:

(The lady saves herself from a C rating by the period.)

I have a problem for you what is a problem. While employed as a telephone operator my body has become so charged with electricity that at times it is impossible to touch anything—even a frying pan or a bar of soap.

I can cause more static on a radio than any weather conditions we have here.

In short, anything I touch produces a shock which, although not too bad, nevertheless, has become very annoying.

I blame the (telephone company) for my jolts, but perhaps I'm wrong.

Have you anything to offer as to cause, or, what is more important, a cure?

Sincerely,
(Signature typed.)

Westward ho on a bright day toward the end of October we paused in Albuquerque. Well up toward the roof of the hotel there I experienced the shock of my life. I swear a spark jumped at me when I tried to turn on or off a lamp. Ma'am, I was indignant. The matter must be attended to at once. It was intolerable. I'd have it out of somebody's hide. I leaped to the telephone to lodge a protest with the management, and dad blast if the telephone didn't give me another and harder shock, which felt like a deliberate crack on the knuckles. What the inarticulate sputtering blazes! The place was a trap—just then came an outcry from the bathroom—had my first wife along—and she, too, had suffered a shock when she tried to turn on the shower.

By that time it had dawned on me that the trouble was not that the electric system had gone haywire but that we had developed static.

The experience reminded me of an implied or expressed wish of many readers of early articles in which I pointed out that there is no such malady as "rheumatism"—some readers who purported to have predicted I'd perhaps know better some day when I developed a case of it.

Timidly I experimented. I found that walking quickly across the room developed a considerable charge and gave a sharp shock, snap or actual spark (in the dark) on contact with almost any object. But if you lolled or stood or sat for a while before you touched the object, no static.

Atmosphere in places of considerable altitude is clear, dry. Favorable conditions for static.

Remedy? I know of none. Humidity or dampness diminishes static. Perhaps proper air-conditioning, especially evaporation of a few gallons of water daily in the office or room would abate the nuisance, and at the same time benefit health, temper and efficiency of all the operators at work in the room.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS.
Potassium and Calcium.

In your monograph on Daily requirement of calcium you mention calcium chloride. In your monograph on Relief of Allergy you mention potassium chloride.
(W. B. C.)

Answer—If your trouble is of allergic nature I advise you to follow a high calcium diet and take additional calcium and vitamin D, as well as trying occasional doses of potassium chloride as you might use adrenalin. For more detailed instructions, send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for monographs "Relief for Allergy" and "Calcium Feeding."

Activity in the fresh air is definitely a beauty measure. Mary Anderson, Jane Gilbert and Lucille Fairbanks, all Warner Brothers' stars, seem to keep quite "fit" while vacationing.

Protective Foods Are Foundation Of Beauty

By Ida Jean Kain.

Now that you are in the mood to reduce, get off on the right diet! The course you choose from the very beginning determines how you will wind up.

The one good thing about a freak diet is that it doesn't last. Three days are about as long as you can stick to your ascetic black coffee breakfasts, liquid lunches and lamb chop dinners . . . then it begins to tell on your usually sweet disposition! In that brief time, you may lose three pounds. But don't be too set up about it. You'll gain them right back, maybe with an extra pound or two. There's nothing like a freak diet to make you relish your calories!

But, at that, you are far better off than the strong-minded woman who sticks to one of these starvation menus. She usually winds up a nervous wreck. And instead of looking "simply divine," she looks a fright!

Then there is the reducer who gallantly starts the new year by cutting down on all food. The smaller serving idea is fine when applied only to those foods you can get along without, such as starchy vegetables, jams and jellies, extra bread and butter, pastries. You know the ones I mean! But this smaller serving plan must not be applied to the protective foods: lean meats, eggs, cheese, milk, fruits and vegetables. Unless these are included in normal amounts, the diet is inadequate.

The protective foods are not only essential to the well being, but they are also the foundation of beauty. For these reasons, the balanced slimming menu is fast becoming popular.

Among the misguiding reducers, however, is the one who follows a balanced, low calorie menu but refuses to exercise. As far as the diet goes, she fares very well, but what she gets is the same figure on a smaller scale! Without exercise, the tendency is always to lose weight from the face and throat, rather than from the hips and waist.

If you are to get beautiful results from your slimming program, your diet must include the protective foods and your exercises must be adapted to your figure needs. In addition, you must have some outdoor exercise daily. Activity in the fresh air is definitely a beauty measure.

MY DAY Tricks in Learning Voice Control

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Tuesday.—Yesterday afternoon I spent a delightful hour with Miss Elizabeth Searcy in her studio on DuPont circle. She has painted a great deal in Newport, R. I., New York city and the south. It is evident in looking at her work that she has a great feeling for her home city, Memphis, Tenn. There are five interiors of rooms which she painted at the Roosevelt house in New York city some years ago, and which seemed to me to belong together in some museum. They are beautifully executed and correct in detail and should, of course, be kept together, preferably where people who are not apt to visit and yet want to know the looks of the house where Theodore Roosevelt was born and spent the early years of his life.

Some of Miss Searcy's etchings are exquisite, but her water colors of gardens were to me the loveliest of all. I hope that she will have an opportunity while here to paint some of the beautiful gardens in and around this city.

The Jackson Day dinner, which we all attended last night, I need hardly tell you about, for you may have listened on the radio. If you did not, the newspapers have told you more than I could about this party function which each year collects the wherewithal to run the Democratic party machine.

I am hoping that the women some day will have as well established a day as the men have. They made a beginning last year, but it was only a beginning. I feel sure that they can be as successful as the men if they begin their plans far enough ahead. Certainly the Democratic party should be able to swing two national celebrations a year to raise money for national work, besides the days devoted to state, county and city organization.

Today, with my voice teacher, Mrs. Elizabeth Von Hesse, I attended the Women's National Press Club luncheon.

Mrs. Von Hesse gave us all a delightful talk and a demonstration lesson in voice control. Everyone seemed to have a good time and I am sure all of us learned something.

Mrs. Von Hesse stresses developing our ability to hear, which reminds me that I have been wanting to tell you for a long time about a musical project here in the District of Columbia, which I think well worth while. The National Committee for Music Appreciation is sponsoring the establishment in the public library of the district of a free circulating library of symphonic records. The nucleus will be ten symphonies which a Washington newspaper recently distributed. Ten of these sets, covering the work of ten great composers, are being presented by the committee to the library, so that thousands of people who canot afford to attend concerts or public performances can hear this music in their homes.

I hope this may be followed by a similar project in many other cities, for the things which we hear constantly and which become familiar to us are the things which we love.

Little Girls Like Grown-Up Fashions

By Barbara Bell.

Busy mothers will certainly rejoice to behold a design that offers two decidedly different fashions for little girls. You can make 1894-B with crisp, detachable collar and cuffs and buttons down the front. Or you can make it collarless, with lacings that end in a bow. Both ways it's just as cute as it can be, with a flaring skirt and puff sleeves, and both ways it's extremely easy to make! Really, you can create a pretty complete everyday wardrobe for your small daughter, using the pattern both ways, in different materials.

A bright little challis or wool crepe dress like this will be nice to finish the wintry season, as well as several in gingham, percale or calico.

Barbara Bell Pattern Uo. 1894-B is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. Size 4 requires 2 1-8 yards of 35-inch material without nap; half yard contrast for collar and cuff style; 1 3-4 yards cords or ribbon for lacing style, 1 3-4 yards binding to trim.

Short Suit Play For Ninth Trick Was Ignored

By Harold Sharpsteen.

How a careless declarer failed to make certain his needed ninth trick from a short suit before attempting to establish his longest suit is illustrated today in solving another problem of suit establishment at no-trump.

North and South gained the contract at three no-trump. West's opening lead was the heart queen, which Dummy won with the king.

South counted two spade tricks, two heart tricks, four diamond tricks after losing to the ace, and one trick in the club suit, a total of nine tricks.

ESTABLISHED HEART SUIT.

South lost no time in attacking the long diamond suit, East refusing to go in with the ace until the third round. East then returned a low heart, forcing out South's ace, West unblocking with the 10 for East's known heart length.

South then cashed his two good diamond tricks and a low club was led to dummy's king. East covered with the ace and cashed his three heart tricks to defeat the contract.

ESTABLISHES CLUB WINNER.

A more cautious declarer would have led a low club at once at trick No. 2 to establish a certain winner in that suit before setting out to establish the long diamond suit.

If East does not jump in with the ace on the very first lead of clubs, declarer will have established his needed ninth trick, because the North-South hands will still hold stoppers in each of the other three suits, including hearts.

CHANCE FOR EAST.

The hand is still defeated, however, if East takes the first lead of clubs with his ace and immediately returns a heart. But, in nine cases out of ten, the average player will miss the importance of this play.

Furthermore, to open clubs on the second lead is the only chance South has to make his contract.

Give Draperies A "G.W.T.W." Elegance

Have you fallen in love with the decorative schemes in "Gone With the Wind," those rich draperies with swag upon swag? Easily you can stitch up such draperies yourself, make a modest pair of windows as aristocratic as any in a southern mansion.

You get the most striking effect by combining two colors. You might make draperies and large swags of apricot sateen, let the smaller swags be of a rich brown sateen and have all the fringe and tasseled cords also in brown. Or would you like to combine burgundy rayon damask with beige?

So the swags will drape in graceful folds, cut each twice as deep as you want the finished swag to be. Shape the lower edge in a shallow curve, slant the ends.

Lining the swags gives them body, richness. Then—when they are stitched and trimmed—arrange swags in folds and tack ends securely.

The larger swags you hang by sewing tape along the tops, tacking them to a valance board.

The smaller swags you may hang on separate drapery rods, back of the draperies. Or you may tack them also to the valance board.

For formal rooms, charming to make your draperies long enough to trail the floor. Drape back with tasseled cords.

How to line your draperies, sew on the fringe trimming. Complete professional directions for making draperies and curtains of many kinds are given in our 40-page booklet, MAKE YOUR OWN CURTAINS AND DRAPERIES. Gives diagrams, step-by-step directions for measuring, cutting, sewing and finishing. Tells how to make cornices, valances, ornamental tiebacks, hold-backs. Has decorators' tips on fabrics, colors, trimmings.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, MAKE YOUR OWN CURTAINS AND DRAPERIES, to Home Innstitute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly 'your NAME, ADDRESS and the NAME of booklet.

Queen Victoria's Blue Powder Box To Be Presented Marietta Couple

By Sally Forth.

AT AN early date the postman will deliver to the Porter Travis residence in Marietta an exquisite blue china powder box which once belonged to England's beloved Queen Victoria! The box is the gift of Mr. Travis' 82-year-old grandmother, Mrs. George Jackson Travis, of Terrell, Texas, who was before her marriage Miss Lucretia Turner, popular belle of Nashville, Tenn.

Harking back to history, you recall that the British Queen ascended the throne of England in 1837. Attending her devotedly as maid in waiting was a faithful English girl, who fell in love and married the Queen's surgeon. So fond of her Queen was the little maid that, when she left the court, she asked her mistres for a keepsake. Whereupon the ruling monarch laughingly presented her the powder box, with the words, "Always be beautiful for your husband."

The three sons of the surgeon and his bride migrated to this country, where one founded a school in Texas in which Mr. Travis' grandfather, George Jackson Travis, was enrolled. So fond did the teacher become of this pupil that, having no heirs of his own, he gave him the powder box as a token of friendship.

The box will become the possession of the prominent Marietans, through the generosity of Mrs. Travis, who recently wrote her grandson and his wife advising them that they were to receive the valued gift.

Mrs. Porter Travis, you recall, is the former Alice Lee Murray, daughter of the Harry P. Murrays, of Charlotte, N. C., who is prominently identified with Girl Scout work and with the Marietta Theater Guild.

THERE is an interesting story behind the news that Mrs. Ernest E. Dallis; her daughter, Mrs. Harry Buice; her small grandson, Dallis Buice, and the latter's nurse left by motor yesterday for Hollywood, Fla. They will visit Colonel and Mrs. Sandy Beaver, who are in the Florida city during the winter session of the Riverside Military Academy, of which Colonel Beaver is the popular head.

Young Dallis Buice, the 21-month-old son of Harry and Epsie Dallis Buice, is making the trip to select his room at the school so everything will be in readiness when he grows up and attends classes there. Dallis was enrolled at the school the day of his birth and plans are all ready for his entry on September 6, 1951, when he is 14 years old.

Colonel Beaver and members of the baby's family call him "Cadet Buice," and it was to "Cadet Buice" that Colonel Beaver sent the acceptance papers for enrollment in 1951. It was also "Cadet Buice" who received the wire from his future school teacher inviting him to make the current trip to Florida to select his room at the school.

The baby's grandfather, Ernest E. Dallis, and Colonel Beaver were classmates in school when they were young and they later attended the University of Georgia together. Their friendship has continued during the years and it was with more than the usual interest in his students that Colonel Beaver made plans for his youngest cadet to visit him this week in Hollywood.

THE beautiful Mirador room at the Capital City Club will form the setting Saturday evening for the first party at which Glenn and Kathryn Barnwell Dudley will be complimented since their marriage. Kathryn, who is the popular daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Barnwell, was married to Glenn at a quiet ceremony taking place on December 23 at St. James Episcopal church in Marietta.

Appropriately enough, the hostesses for the first party will be a group of friends, including nine prominent belles whose acquaintance with the lovely bride began several years ago when they were students at North Fulton High school.

The hostesses for the occasion will be Frances Spratlin, Sarah Lewis, Helen Clarke, Rannie Geissler, Charlotte Ripley, Dorothy Harris, Louise McKie, Rosalie Brooks and Mary Kerr Brooks.

P.-T. A. Board Votes To Increase Number of Districts to Fifteen

MACON, Ga., Jan. 10.—Members of the board of managers of the Georgia Congress of Parents and Teachers meeting here today voted to increase the Parent-Teacher districts from 10 to 15.

The fifth district will now be known as the eighth district, including the following counties: Haralson, Carroll, Heard, Troup, Coweta, Meriwether, Forsyth, Fulton, Douglas and Clayton.

The board of managers also moved to stimulate 40,000 members to "more active citizenship." Resolutions called for members to "inform themselves" on the Georgia school situation and urged local Parent-Teacher units to launch a campaign to register and qualify all members for participation in both local and state elections.

Mrs. J. S. Gordy, of Columbus, state president, declared the action taken by the board of managers "does not mean that Parent-Teacher organizations are entering politics but rather is indicative of more active citizenship."

The suggestion that members study the school situation recalled that the problem of financing Georgia schools will be a major factor in the forthcoming political campaigns. The state has pledged support of a seven months' school term for all Georgia schools, but income for that specific purpose has been lacking.

Other resolutions commended the drive to raise funds for infantile paralysis work and pledged support.

A state convention will be held at Brunswick April 16-18.

Mr. and Mrs. Kaplan To Observe Fiftieth Anniversary Next Sunday

MR. AND MRS. NATHAN A. KAPLAN.

Honoring their parents on the occasion of their 50th wedding anniversary, the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan A. Kaplan, pioneer Atlanta citizens, will hold an open house reception on January 14 at their home at 1410 Peachtree street, to which their friends are invited.

Born in Odessa, Russia, April 15, 1862, Mr. Kaplan immigrated at age 20 to New York by way of Rotterdam, Holland. He arrived in Atlanta August 29, 1882. His hanwritten petition, dated June 12, 1883, to the superior court of Fulton county, Georgia, to become a United States citizen was recently located in the archives of the courthouse, corner Pryor and Hunter streets. Attached to it is Judge Marshall J. Clarke's lengthy, handwritten order dated March 2, 1889, by which Mr. Kaplan was admitted to citizenship.

In October, 1889, Mr. Kaplan announced his engagement to Miss Jeannette Marshall, of Anniston, Ala. Their marriage ceremony was performed January 14, 1890, by the Temple rabbi, Dr. Leo Reich. Best man was Colonel Harry Silverman, with Henry Beerman and Ralph Rosenbaum, a recent past president of the Temple, as his attendants. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Herman Marshall, now a resident of San Francisco, Cal., and N. I. Sussman, her brother-in-law. As was customary during the latter part of the last century, the entire Jewish population of Atlanta and vicinity attended their wedding festivities.

Realizing its need, Mr. Kaplan organized the Jewish synagogue (Congregation Ahavath-Achim) about the time of his marriage. He became its first president, later serving as secretary. About 30 years ago Mr. Kaplan rejoined the Temple.

Several years ago Fulton Lodge F. & A. M., No. 216, awarded Mr. Kaplan a life membership after 30 years' continuous affiliation with that body.

In 1925 Mr. and Mrs. Kaplan moved to Florida. They resided on Miami Beach the following 13 years. Upon attaining age 70 in 1932, Mr. Kaplan retired from active business. A year ago the couple returned to Atlanta to spend the remainder of their lives.

Their four sons were born and reared in Atlanta: A. N. Kaplan Sr., of Miami, Fla.; Moise N. Kaplan, Louis I. Kaplan, and Ben W. Kaplan, all of Atlanta.

B. and P. Division of Hadassah Celebrates 'New Year of Trees'

Commemorating Chamisho Osor B'Shevat, the festival of the "New Year of the Trees," the Business and Professional Women's Division of Hadassah devoted its recent meeting to the celebration of this holiday which is the harbinger of spring in Palestine, and to the tree project of J. N. F.

Miss Bess Lutsky, vice chairman, presided and the refreshment table was beautifully decorated with the fruits of the trees of Palestine.

From very early days Hadassah has co-operated with the Jewish National Fund in its important task of raising funds for the redemption of land and for tree planting. Over a million and a half trees have been planted in Palestine since the issuance of the Balfour declaration, and the establishment of the Jewish national home and have been a principal factor in the redemption of the land for colonization and agriculture. Orchards of olives, oranges, almonds, lemons have been private and lucrative financial enterprises, the Hertzl, Washington, Balfour, and Hadassah forests have been J. N. F.'s contribution to the redemption and conservation of the soil.

Miss Rosa Goldstein, tree chairman, requests that members purchase trees in memory of beloved ones or in celebration of happy events. By calling MA. 6677, all arrangements will be made for planting trees in Palestine.

The program chairman, Mrs. Osna Robkin, presented Mrs. Z. Tabory, violinist, accompanied by Miss Rose Stern. Miss Mary Tennenbaum read a paper on "Chamisho Osor B'Shevat" and Miss Eudice Tontack gave the poem, "Rosh Hashanah of the Trees" by Silvia Greenglass. An article from "Nation" read by Mrs. Robkin, on the situation of the Jews in the Reich, featured the current events discussion.

Miss Bess Lutsky, vice chairman, was elected official delegate to the southeastern convention of Hadassah to be held in Charleston, January 29 and 30. Miss Rebecca Davis and Mrs. E. Fox will also be delegates. A special bus chartered by the Atlanta chapters of Hadassah will leave Atlanta Sunday morning, January 28, and leave Charleston Wednesday morning. By calling Miss Bess Lutsky, reservations may be made before Saturday, January 27.

Mrs. G. Warburg, niece of Felix Warburg, will visit Atlanta January 12 and 13, in the interests of Hadassah. An Oneg Shabatt tea will be held in her honor at the Standard Club Saturday. Business and professional members are requested to attend the tea and also the luncheon in Mrs. Warburg's honor to be held Friday.

On February 14, the all-day conference on Hadassah national educational day will feature a luncheon to be held at Rich's tearoom. Mrs. J. Abelson may be called for reservations.

Miss Helen Seff, cultural chairman, announces the second course of the study groups begins the latter part of February. The next history class will be Monday at 7:30 o'clock at the synagogue. "The Survival of the Jew" is the subject and the history classes are held bimonthly.

The Fireside Group, devoted to the study of current literature, will meet January 22 at the home of Mrs. Hyman Morris, 949 Courtney drive, at 8 o'clock. Miss Lillie Bleich will review "Mr. Emanuel."

The membership drive will culminate at a gala "Fun Note" February 26 at the Jewish Progressive Club, and will replace the monthly meeting. The party is open to paid-up members and prospective members. The slogan of the membership drive is "Every Member Bring a Member" and the chairman requests each member to fulfill her quota.

The Business and Professional Women's division of Hadassah is composed of those women interested in Jewish affairs and the restoration of Palestine as a Jewish national home, who are unable to attend the afternoon meetings of the senior division.

During the month of March the division will hold its annual administration bridge in the form of chain bridges. Miss Ann Tokam was appointed chairman with Miss Lillie Vidor and Mrs. Lillian R. Pearlman as co-chairmen.

'FORTY PLUS GROUP MAY DIE'—LEADERS

Unit To Find Jobs Needs More Attendance.

AVERAGE PRICE.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The average price of middling 15-16ths-inch cotton today at 10 designated southern spot markets was 1 point lower at 11.00 cents a pound; average for the past 30 market days 10.70 cents a pound. Middling 7-8th-inch average was 10.82 cents a pound.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—(AP)—The cotton futures market appeared out of breath today after the fast sprints of the last few weeks. The market closed 4 points higher to 2 lower.

Cotton men said the price list seemed to have adjusted itself to the latest news from Washington and abroad affecting the staple. What traders now need for another go at the market, they added, was a fresh incentive.

Wall Street interests liquidated their holdings and a spot house continued to place hedges in March and May. A little foreign pressure came in at the start.

On the buying side were trade interests and local professionals. Buying here by a large spot interest was said to be against sales in Liverpool.

Worth Street reported only fill-in cloth business. Prices on some of the more popular print cloth constructions were said to be shaky as stocks of these goods increase.

Exports Tuesday 40,035 bales; season so far 3,370,286. Port receipts 26,864; port stocks 3,331,489.

TRADE BUYING ERASES DECLINES IN COTTON

Butts Gets 3-Year Contract; All Georgia Coaches Retained

All in the Game

- by Jack Troy

Well, sir, having looked for an arrogant Yankee ever since seeing that soul-stirring, spirit-moving spectacle, "Gone With the Wind," I think I've found my man.

At least, Messr. Ted Husing will do until a more arrogant Yankee comes along.

It seems that Husing, a sports thrush of the airways, had an idea he knew a little something about how football teams operate. He had seen the great and the near-great of the east, the west, the midwest, the southwest and the south.

And so, according to the story, he walks up to Coach W. A. Alexander at Miami and says, "What formation do you use, coach?"

"We use the single wing," Bill Alexander replied, "either right or left. Would you like to see us practice?"

"No," replied Ted Husing, according to the story, "that's all I want to know."

They do say that Husing even was offered the services of a newspaperman along with Tech to act as a spotter—and that Mr. Husing grandly waived the offer. He knew what football was all about.

And so the Techs and the Missouris play. Far away on the Pacific coast a few other southerners and I who had seen Tech play, listen to the game. And we chuckle as Mr. Husing stammers and stutters and tries to identify who is doing what on the Tech side. And we laugh a bit as he brings Tennessee into it and then adroitly explains he's sorry; that he got mixed up with last year.

As we listened we got the idea that there were 13 confused folks at the Orange Bowl game—the 11 Missouri players, Ted Husing and his eastern spotter.

But we didn't think much about it at the time. We knew how tough it was to try to follow the Tech attack with the naked eye.

Yesterday a different light was cast on the matter. Mr. Husing had a chance to learn more about Tech. But he took it for granted that he knew something about football, it seems.

So doubtless he's one Yankee who will know better next time.

HE SPEAKS HIS MIND.

Fred T. Wilkinson writes concerning Tennessee and the Rose Bowl game in the following letter, which is self-explanatory:

"Dear Sir:

"As a regular and admiring reader of your column I have followed with interest your stories of the Vol-U. S. C. encounter in the Rose Bowl. Saturday's column was of particular interest, as was the one on Sunday in which you quoted excerpts from other writers and a Mr. Hobbs.

"Your humble correspondent is no stranger to competitive sports and generally looks with disfavor on attempts to 'build up' (a coach) too much or to assist in tearing him down. (One recent instance of these two actions was you writing boys' 'work' on Joel Hunt, of Georgia U. While traveling about the land with him he was a wonderful coach and a great builder of men, etc. When the old el heavo act was put on not one kind word could be found for him.) But back to the subject at hand.

"Before coming to Atlanta two years ago, this writer lived for many years within a block of the U. S. C. campus in L. A. Observation of many teams there (and tactics) bears out your assertion they 'pick their spots.' One instance, their refusal to play their old nemesis, St. Marys, except on years when they (St. Marys) had 'sophomore teams.' This even during the days of 1930-1933. That was the period they had Pinckert, et al.

"Now the fine job of reporting you did lacked, in my humble opinion, one thing. That was open-minded, constructive criticism of Major Neyland. First for taking a team to the Rose Bowl that he knew was not right. That is, he must have known Cafego would be unable to play. I was fortunate enough to see Tennessee and Cafego in the Orange Bowl last year and Texas Aggies in the Sugar Bowl this year, and as I watched the great Kimbrough I realized what would happen to his team if he went out and I knew then what would happen to Tennessee a little later. And to top this off, a few hours later while listening to the radio and Butler's magnificent drive to save a desperate cause for his team, the entire party clustered about the radio was dumbstruck, absolutely speechless, when it was announced 'Butler goes out of the game.' We knew then it was over—for 'Fumbling Warren' has gotten his team into some awful holes all year and, of course, it didn't take long again. One of our party remarked, 'Until now I had given U. C. L. A. the booby prize for this year for that fourth-down play in the U. S. C. game, but Neyland proves experience will help, even dumbness.'

"So, Jack, I still abhor this kind of criticism but believe it is the duty of a sports scribe, even while the guest of a team, to report their doings objectively and not go overboard for them on bad luck, cheerful losing spirit, etc. I must agree with Mr. Hobbs 'the Major has let the south down.'

"You say you hope some day to be at the bowl when a southern team blasts its opponent out of the stadium. How about a reservation for 1942? Sinkwich, Blanton, et al., look like good bets to do it.

"Yours very truly,

"FRED T. WILKINSON."

Well, sir, I can't recall beating so many drums at any time for Mr. Hunt, nor did I see any justification for criticizing Coach Neyland. Cafego played the equivalent of a quarter. And had he played the entire game at top form it is to be doubted that, with the breaks going as they did and with the Trojans coming at the size they did, the Vols would have been able to play their opponents on even terms. And it wasn't Warren, but Newman, who fumbled.

Nevertheless, the letter is highly appreciated. Don't forget they shunned a great Tennessee team last year and the Vols went out there the first time they were invited. I don't know of any

Fayettevillle Cagers Split With Hapeville

The Hapeville basketball teams split a double bill with the Fayetteville outfits Tuesday night on the Russell High court. Hapeville's boys eked out a 21 to 19 victory over the invaders, with Flashlite Colwell starring for the winners and Neal Dettmering pacing the loser's attack. The tables were turned in the girls' game, with Fayetteville winning handily, 41 to 19.

More Praise Is Bestowed On Jackets

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

Perhaps it is just more water under your bridgework by now, but zealous Georgia Tech fans, with which this area is all but inundated, surely haven't tired yet of hearing verbal bouquets tossed at the collective apple (at the moment) of their collective eye, the 1939 rejuvenated version Ramblin' Wreck football team. Here are a few of the more laudatory things for their mental scrapbooks.

After their amazing exhibition of ball handling wizardry New Year's Day in the Orange Bowl it was Everett Clay, Miami Herald Sports Editor, who handed the Techs what was, perhaps, the finest boost of all.

After admitting that the year before, after Tennessee had thumped Oklahoma in the Miami Bowl classic, he had likened the Vols to greased lightning, Clay countered that "the Tennesseans, however, were a bunch of knock-kneed Gophers alongside the Engineers." As if that wasn't sufficient adulation he added, "The Engineers are the fastest thing we have ever had the pleasure of watching on a football field—and certainly the trickiest."

Clay further admitted that much of the time he was as bewildered as were the Missouri players and the spectators—which was plenty—as to the whereabouts of the ball when the Techs were passing it around like a hot potato in their backfield.

However, it was Bob Orf, one of Missouri's white-thatched twin ends, we think, who best summed up the reasons for the light Jackets amazing success this year with the post game comment: "They (Tech) have the ideal setup; a strong line and fast backs. And, boy, what blocking. I spent most of the afternoon on the ground. I don't know where all those blockers came from." George Ellis, a Tiger guard, echoed, "Yeh! and I've got a headache trying to keep up with that ball. That Ison-whew! He's a honey; isn't he?"

But—Lordy! Lordy! Imagine any team making Bob Neyland's 1938 Vols look like "a bunch of knock-kneed Gophers" by comparison. And to an impartial observer, too. Tie that one, Aunt Minnie. If you can.

LONGSHOT WINS HIALEAH OPENER

Maetall Noses Out Cardinalis; Meade on 4th Place Speed To Spare.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Dewitt Page's Maetall, a longshot paying $38.40 for $2, won the $5,000 added inaugural handicap today before a crowd of 16,298 attending the opening of Hialeah park's 46-day race meet.

Maetall, a 5-year-old that finished second in his last six starts, just lasted in a driving finish to beat a field horse, P. L. Kelley's Cardinalis, by a head. Three lengths farther back was Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' Great Union, which beat the favored Speed to Spare by a nose for the show position.

The winner, stepping the six furlongs in 1:11 4-5 over a dull track, paid $16.40 to place and $9.10 to show. Cardinalis, a field horse, returned $6 and $3.80 with Great Union paying $8 for third.

The Circle M ranch's Speed to Spare, ridden by Don Meade, led from the start almost to the stretch, then faded back.

The gaily dressed crowd, which included such celebrities as Jack Dempsey, Al Jolson, Ben Bernie, Russell Firestone and George Ade, overflowed the grandstand and clubhouse onto the lawns.

The pari-mutuel "handle" on the eight races was $449,092, a 20 per cent increase over last year's opening day.

Capital City Course Too Soggy for Play

Capital City's golfers will have to wait another day before resuming play.

Officials of the club Wednesday announced the greens entirely too soggy for play, at least for another 24 hours, after which conditions are expected to be much better.

Sunday's ice and sleet were a big help to the greens, but play now will do far more too much damage to allow it yet.

CELTICS WIN, 50-40.

LITHONIA, Ga., Jan. 10.—In a clean game in which only one foul was called the World's Champion Celtics defeated Bishop Oil, 50 to 40, here tonight.

Suffridge Will Have Operation on Knee

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 10. (AP)—Bob Suffridge, guard on the University of Tennessee football team, will undergo an operation on his left knee tomorrow, a member of the Vol coaching staff said today.

Suffridge injured the knee in the Alabama game last fall and never regained the form that carried him to All-Southeastern honors as a sophomore in 1938.

The surgeon who will perform the operation said Suffridge's injury was similar to one suffered by George Cafego, ace Vol tailback, who underwent an operation on his lame leg yesterday.

Neely Figures Rice Offers Best Future

By JACK TROY.

Two highly important coaching developments concerning the deep south were climaxed yesterday.

First of all, so far as our section is concerned, the University of Georgia athletic board moved with characteristic shrewdness and awarded Coach Wallace Butts a three-year contract. Which should ease some of his worries, and which should benefit Georgia greatly.

The second development concerned the Southern conference and the loss of Jess Neely. The decision of the Clemson coach to accept a contract with Rice, of the Southwest conference, was mingled emotions by supporters of the South Carolina Tigers.

But Neely was very fair about it all. He weighed both jobs very carefully—and for the future's sake he accepted the Texas job. It offers opportunities that he could not, at this time, expect to get at the fine Carolina school.

Apparently, the Clemson board matched, in monetary figures, what Rice offered. But the comment from the southwest is that Neely can hope to profit a great deal more at Rice.

There was only deep regret on the part of Clemson, whose athletic board readily admitted that in Neely's nine years of service he had pulled them out of the deep red and had given them a handsome bank balance. And yet, the Clemson board of athletic extended to Jess the best of luck for a long and successful career in his new undertaking.

Neely admitted, in a long-distance telephone conversation late last night, that money did not influence him in accepting the job at Rice. He talked everything over with his wife and they agreed that he probably would have a greater opportunity at a larger school.

Awarding of a three-year contract to Coach Butts at Georgia also is bound to strike a popular chord among southern football followers.

Bigger Rose Bowl Given Consideration

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 10.—(AP)—City directors are considering enlarging the Rose Bowl, scene of the annual New Year's football game, from 83,570 seats to 100,000.

Director George L. Shuler told the board that hundreds of visitors from all sections of the nation, here during the holiday season, were disappointed by inability to attend the game.

Enlarging the bowl would cost from $3 to $6 a seat, Building Superintendent Walter Putnam said.

The Tournament of Roses Association has received its first application for the 1941 game, and the writer, Chester Turner, of Los Angeles, said he didn't care who played.

Alexander's Eleven Wins at Boys' High

Kale Alexander's eleven opened Boys' High's interclass football schedule with a 19-to-0 victory over Charlie Furchgott's team Wednesday afternoon.

Bob and Jimmy Askew, brothers, also were outstanding for Alexander's team, as was George Henderson.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Six of the leading women golfers of the United States today had filed their entries for the 72-hole medal play titlist golf tournament starting over the Augusta Country Club course next Monday.

Jean Bauer, blonde Providence, R. I., shot maker has filed her entry for the fourth annual tournament. She competed in the three previous tournaments.

Miss Lillian Wood, of Richmond, Virginia state champion, also has advised the tournament officials that she will compete.

Previous entries received were from Mrs. Helen Hicks Harb, of Freeport, Long Island, New York; Mrs. Myron Davy, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Bee Cockrell, Folden, Texas, and Elizabeth Dunn, of Indianapolis, Ind.

The tourament is limited to women golf champions, and while the field always is small, play is fast, with competition keen.

Earlier in the week, Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta, announced she would not enter because bad weather had prevented her from practicing.

Decatur Divides With North Fulton

Decatur High and North Fulton's basketball teams divided a doubleheader on the North Fulton court.

Decatur girls won the preliminary game, 28 to 20. The winners took an early lead and was never headed, leading 15 to 8 at the half.

North Fulton boys came back with a 21-to-17 victory to prevent a clean sweep of the twin bill. North Fulton was ahead 8 to 7 at the half.

Engel Tells His 1,700 Managers Flag Sure

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Jan. 10.—(UP)—The 1,700 baseball fans who chipped in to keep the Chattanooga Lookouts going were promised another championship club last night.

Joe Engel, president of the Lookouts, said at the annual stockholders' meeting, that the Lookouts were on the way to capturing a second consecutive pennant.

He said that, while the team had lost money at the gate, sale of players had tided the club over and "we will start the season with the best bunch of players ever carried into camp."

Stockholders praised Manager Ki Ki Cuyler, who piloted the championship team last year. A committee arranged a dinner in Cuyler's honor.

ATHLETIC STAFF DISPLAYS FAITH IN ENTIRE SETUP

Wallace To Get Salary Boost; Troutman, Hains Added to Board.

By TOM McRAE.

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 10.—Expressing complete confidence, the University of Georgia athletic board tonight awarded Coach Wallace Butts a three-year contract—with an increase in salary attached.

Only once before had the board gone "overboard" on a coach. They had acted similarly in the case of Joel Hunt, whose contract was retired after a year of coaching.

And, since precedent was set aside tonight, it was quite obvious that the board believed that lightning would not strike twice in the same place.

The action taken indicates, more than words can express, that the athletic association has full confidence in Butts and will support him to the limit.

NO CHANGES SEEN.

Butts has expressed complete satisfaction at the present coaching setup, and so it is likely that the assistants, who are responsible to him, will remain. They are J. B. Whitworth, line coach; Bill Hartman, backfield coach; J. V. Sikes, assistant football coach and baseball coach; Elmer Lampe, assistant football coach and basketball coach; Forrest Towns, assistant football coach and track coach; Howell Hollis, freshman coach; Quinton Lumpkin, assistant freshman coach and freshman basketball coach; Fitz Lutz, trainer.

The members of the 17-man athletic board, with University President Harmon W. Caldwell chairman, are W. O. Payne, J. D. Bolton, L. L. Hendren, Alfred Scott, R. L. McWhorter, W. D. Hooper, R. H. Driftmier, all on the university faculty; Marion Smith, George C. Woodruff, T. S. Mell, all alumni members; Dan MacDougald, Watson Walker, George Sancken, A. A. Lawrence, all chosen by the alumni society; S. V. Sanford, only lifetime member since the death of Harold Hirsch, ardent supporter of the university; A. G. Dudley, only non-alumnus.

TROUTMAN, HAINS ADDED.

Robert B. Troutman, '11, of Atlanta, and George Hains, '06, of Augusta, were added to the board.

The board decided that boxing, abolished as an intercollegiate sport by the Southeastern conference, will continue as an intramural sport.

The decision to give Butts a three-year contract must have been made some time ago. Dr. Payne, director of athletics, practically admitted that Butts would be back in a talk at the Rotary Club banquet last month.

To show how cut and dried the thing was, Butts, Whitworth, Sikes, Hollis and Towns are enjoying the hospitality of Albany people today and tomorrow. Lampe and his basketball team will leave tomorrow for Albany for a game. Lumpkin is the only other coach here.

CAME AS AIDE.

Butts came to the University in 1938 as assistant coach after having one of the most impressive records ever compiled by a prep school mentor. Butts turned out championship clubs at Madison A. and M., Georgia Military College and Male High, in Louisville, Ky.

The past season was Butts' first as head coach and the team won five and lost six. The Bulldogs played only one poor game—against Furman. He had no men

Neely Accepts Five-Year Rice Coaching Offer

$7,500 SALARY REPORTED GIVEN CLEMSON PILOT

Details Still To Be Worked Out; Jess Reports February 1.

CLEMSON, S. C., Jan. 10.—(AP) Jess Neely resigned today as athletic director at Clemson College and then telephoned officials at Rice Institute he would accept the head football coaching job there.

Neely, lithe, 42-year-old native of Smyrna, Tenn., had his best coaching year in 1939, losing only to Tulane, 6 to 7. He topped off the performance when his Tiger football club defeated Boston College 3-3 in the Cotton Bowl game at Dallas, Texas.

Dr. Lee Milford, chairman of the Clemson Athletc Council, stated: "We regret Coach Neely's resignation a great deal and wish him the best of success with his teams at Rice Institute. We accept the resignation with the satisfaction of knowing that the athletic council, board of trustees and Clemson alumni made every reasonable effort to keep Neely with us here at Clemson.

VOTED $2,000 BONUS.

"The board of trustees yesterday authorized the athletc council to award Coach Neely a personal bonus of $2,000 for the year 1939 and a $2,000 bonus to be divided among his assistant coaches. In addition to this the board authorized the athletic council to negotiate with Coach Neely on the basis of an $8,000-year contract and $2,000 a year in raises to be distributed among the assistants."

Milford said the council would meet in an emergency session tomorrow to consider a sucessor to Neely who came to Clemson in January, 1931, from the University of Alabama where he served three years as assistant to Head Coach Wallace Wade. Neely's Clemson team and Wade's Duke eleven last fall tied for the Southern Conference championship.

At Clemson Neely was credited with pulling the Tigers out of a bad financial hole as well as directing a long-pull athletic policy that eventually produced winners after years of setbacks.

EARNED SCHOOL $100,000.

W. D. Barnett, a Clemson trustee, said Neely earned $100,000 for Clemson in his nine years here. Barnett said Neely inherited a $47,000 deficit, which has been paid and that approximately $52,000 was in the treasury.

Neely's nine-year football record was 43 victories, 35 defeats and seven ties. In his first four years he had lost 21 and won but 12.

Neely won fame as a football and baseball player at Vanderbilt University, 1921-24, played under Coach Dan McGugin and Assistant Coach Wallace Wade. After his graduation he was head coach at Southwestern University at Memphis 1924-27. He was assistant baseball coach at Princeton in 1928 and that fall went to Alabama.

Vandy Line Coach, McIntosh, Resigns.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 10.—(AP)—Russell (Dutch) McIntosh, line coach of Vanderbilt University for the past five years, resigned today.

The college stars lost a close game to the Crimson Bulldogs, and have played Lithonia and Fort McPherson.

FIRE CHIEFS TAKE CIVIC LEAD.

Gasco and Calvary played another close game with a foul shot in the last minute giving Calvary a 30-to-29 edge. The game goes to the Gasco, however, as Calvary played an ineligible man.

Dental College took the third agme from the "Y" Triangles in spite of the 26 points shot by Roberts, forward for the Triangles.

MISS JOYCE SLATE, PRESIDENT OF G. H. S. A. A., HURLS THE FIRST BALL AT OPENING OF GIRLS' HIGH BOWLING LEAGUE.

Celtics '5' Extended By Crackers, 44-40

By THAD HOLT.

The World Champion Celtics, freezing the ball with all their cunning to stave off a closing rush by the enemy, last night were extended to the limit it, nosing out a jittery but dangerous Crackers team, 44-40, before 2,700 howling fans at Sports Arena.

Fans kept waiting for the Celtics to roll up a safe lead so they could go through their monkey-shines, but the Crackers wouldn't co-operate. They battled doggedly at the pro champions' heels, never allowing them a moment to clown. As the game neared an end and the heretofore unbeaten Atlanta team began to play itself out of its nervous state, it was the Celtics and Dutch Dehnert, their coach, who were worried.

They called time out, the Champions did. They asked every 15 seconds about the time. And Big Dutch Dehnert yelled himself hoarse trying to steady his men and keep them out in front.

The Celtics dared to make only one substitution. With six minutes to play and leading by 40-33, they risked sending Rookie Jimmy Brown, from Temple into the game to replace little Davey Banks. Brown wasn't clicking, so Banks came rushing back into the game with a minute and a half to play.

GLAD IT'S OVER.

At the final whistle, when Bo Johnston blew a perfect crip that would have left the score at 44-42, Dutch Dehnert drew a long breath and said—"thank goodness, that's over. We've been worrying about this game and we're glad to win by any kind of score. With a little luck on their shots those boys could have licked us."

Unable to penetrate the Crackers' sharp and smart defense, the Celtics had to resort to long shots to turn the tide. It was the veteran Nat Hickey who brought them through. He sank six from midcourt in the first half to give his team a 25-18 margin at intermission, but was well guarded in the second half and finished the game with 16 points.

The Crackers were ahead but once, pacing the men of magic by 4-2 early in the contest. They were apparently beaten only once, when the Celtics grabbed a 31-20 lead in the second half, but with 10 minutes left to play had the home town machine had narrowed the gap to 36-30.

MOORE, LIEB STAR.

Virlyn Moore, playing on a bum ankle that would have kept a less spirited lad on the sidelines, shot 12 points to lead the Atlanta team's offensive, a swell, performance considering his condition and the fact that he played only about half the time.

Dutch Dehnert described Bob Lieb, Cracker guard, as the finest player encountered by the Celtics in the south. The former Roanoke College sensation played the outstanding floor game of the night and seemed to be wherever there was action.

The Cracker coach, Shep Lauter, admitted the fact that his boys probably suffered a bit from stage fright, also pointing out that Moore was hurt and Fred Bradford almost too ill to play. Lauter expressed a willing to meet the pro champions in a return game.

Such a game may be arranged for Sunday week.

There were two red-hot preliminaries. Sewell Service Girls vanquished Monroe A. & M. Girls, 38-31, but the Monroe Boys put on a roaring finish to take the Crimson Bulldogs, 38-34.

NEW HEAT RACE ON SUNDAY BILL

Much like "off again, on again, gone again—Finnegan" of railroad fame—semi-stock auto races are "on again" for Lakewood Speedway Sunday after twice being postponed because of weather conditions.

An additional heat race was added to the program Wednesday as good measure for those fans who have twice trudged to the speedway in ice and sleet to receive only rain checks for their loyalty.

After promising fans that skis would be attached to the semi-stock gas mounts if necessary to stage the meet last Sunday, Bill Breitenstein, the promoter, was foiled in this novel undertaking because of a lack of snow on the speed course.

"There was just enough ice to keep most of the fans away, but not enough to stage a high-speed skating contest around the track," he apologizes.

Jallopy races, heat races, time trials and a 60-mile semi-stock national championship event are on the bill for Sunday, starting with time trials at 1 p. m. sharp.

Volleyball Tourney Set for Saturday

The Southeastern invitational vol' ball tournament scheduled at the Central Y. M. C. A. Saturday afternoon and night will be run on a round-robin basis with each team playing every other team two games of 11 points each. The regular volleyball game consists of 15 points, but the local committee cut it to 11 in order to have the competition on a round-robin basis.

Six teams have entered, including Chattanooga, Knoxville, Macon, Columbus, Atlanta and the defending champions, Augusta. Play will begin at 2:30 p. m. and run until 10 p. m. The public is invited to attend and there will be no admission charged.

200 PARTICIPATE IN LOOP OPENING

Miss Slate Gains Count of 8 Pins on 'Official' Delivery.

A group of 200 attractive young ladies from Girls' High school took part in the opening of the bowling tournament from that school on the downtown bowling alleys Wednesday afternoon, with a number of topflight games being registered during the two games of exciting competition.

Miss Joyce Slate, president of the Girls' High School Athletic Association, rolled the first ball that officially opened the bowling for the league and gained a count of 8 pins on the "official" delivery. In the league games, Miss Slate had consistent scores of 99 and 101 to bolster the scores of her team.

Misses Frances Spain and Gwendolyn Hill shared individual scoring top honors, Miss Spain having the high single game of 125 and Miss Hill turning in a count of 215 to pace the series totals.

Other games of 100 or better were turned in by Misses Katherine O'Callaghan, Anne Davis and Margaret Blair.

RUMOR DEPARTMENT.

It may only be a scene from Gullible's Travels, but they do say that a coaching change is imminent within the circles of the Southeastern conference.

Possibly it's only a minor change—but the rumor mongers have it that soon Vernon (Catfish) Smith is to join the staff of Harry Mehre at Ole Miss, and that Frank Johnson, who has been coaching basketball and aiding in football, is to seek employment elsewhere.

It may be just a lot of talk—but it's insistent talk. At any rate, Frank Johnson is due to bring the Rebel courtmen here the week end of January 19.

Smith, former Georgia All-America, has been with Rex Enright at South Carolina for three years as an assistant coach in football. Johnson will be remembered as a former Georgia football and basketball star. Mehre took him to Ole Miss when he left Georgia.

RUSSELL CAGERS WIN TWO GAMES

Russell High school, defending its North Georgia Interscholastic conference basketball championship, won a double victory Wednesday afternoon over Druid Hills High.

Russell's girls opened the double-header with a 34-to-17 win and the boys made it a clean sweep, winning, 24 to 18.

East Lake Courses To Remain Closed

East Lake's two 18-hole golf courses will be closed again today, it was announced Wednesday afternoon by officials of the club. It's the first time in many years that the two East Lake courses have been closed to play.

The practice grounds will be available, but officials of the club found it unwise to let players walk over the greens, even though all the ice has melted away.

BUTTS RETAINED AS GRID MENTOR

to replace Quinton Lumpkin, All-Southern center, or Marvin Gillespie and Carroll Thomas, two better than average ends—or least better than the Georgia average. Earl Hise, fine tailback, as a sophomore, did not return to school and injuries removed Winston Hodgson, first-string guard, and cut down the effectiveness of Tommy Witt, soph center, and Truck Kimsey, soph tailback, around whom the offense was built. It was necessary to drop a first-string tackle for failure to observe training rules.

Only those close to the University knew the handicaps under which Butts worked, and possibly his way of facing and accepting them without alibi influenced the board's action.

The Georgia team the past season had three players vastly overrated by Bulldog followers. At best, they were only fair, but fans thought them potential All-Southerns. Possibly, they never reached the heights expected of them because they were under three different coaches—Harry Mehre, Joel Hunt and then Butts. It would be hard to find three men whose personalities vary so much as these three.

Butts got a tough break when Mal Stevens accused the Georgia team of being dirty. The New York papers said it appeared that N. Y. U. started the gorgeous fist fight which broke out between the two teams and they also said they could see nothing in the Georgia team to bear out Stevens' charges. A young reporter who had been beaten on a story threw the Georgia coach into a bad light by filing a piece that inferred Butts had acted unjustly in dismissing a player from the squad.

The stocky 200-pound Bulldog leader won't bring up these things, though, and, to use a very trite expression, he takes his medicine like a man.

Of all the teams Butts has coached or will coach probably the one last season will remain nearest to his heart. The squad had little talent but plenty of heart. They lost more of 'em but they came up with a hard, slashing game almost every Saturday. Butts admits, with joy, that there is some good material on the highly-touted freshman team and expects a better team next fall, though the won-lost record may not improve because of a much harder schedule, one of the toughest in the country, in fact.

Butts might appreciate it if somebody told his famous freshmen that they looked mighty good against the South Carolina and Tech frosh and G. M. C., but the heck of it is, the South Carolina and Tech freshmen and G. M. C. aren't on 1940 varsity schedule.

Dempsey Dedicates Memorial To Rickard

By HENRY SUPER.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 10.—(UP)—Jack Dempsey yesterday dedicated a memorial to Tex Rickard—the greatest sports promoter who ever handed out an "Annie Oakley."

A gaudy crowd jammed around the beetle-browed man who held the heavyweight title back in the golden decade of sports as he tossed a wreath onto the blue waters of a new swimming pool at his hotel here.

For the audience it was a gala event—a carnival with the usual bathing beauties for props. But there was a serious look on Jack's face as he said:

"I dedicate this memorial to the greatest sportsman who ever lived—Tex Rickard."

Probably only half a dozen persons in the crowd had ever seen old Tex and not many more knew who he was, but for Dempsey this was an important moment.

"Tex was a funny sort of guy," Jack recalled. "I often think about how he died. It happened right down here in 1929. Tex had a bad appendix and knew it.

"He could sit down and lose thousands of dollars in a poker game or face a guy with a drawn gun and never bat an eye. Yet he was scared of doctors.

"His appendix got worse and finally broke. Gangrene set in and he died—so suddenly we hardly knew what had happened.

"There's the story—if I'd have won the title back, if Tex had lived—well, I hate to think what might have happened. Just a few seconds either way and both our lives might have been changed."

GIRL AT THE FRONT

When Claire Visits Frau Weber's Shop, As Instructed, She Sees George Roland

By BOB EDEN.

SYNOPSIS.

Claire Dutton, private secretary to William Cameron, American diplomatic liaison official, rushes from the French liner St. Croix at Le Havre as the gangplank is being lowered, after sending for her four bags. Cameron has been delayed in Paris and Claire knows she can't return home without him—"dear Bill," secretly, to her. Returning to Paris, she discovers there are five bags, one an exact duplicate of her overnight bag. At the American embassy, Welles Sanford phones the Surete generale. Pierre Bornet responds and finds in the bag a highly inflammable chemical capable of destroying the St. Croix. While Bornet is searching Cameron's hotel rooms, Claire finds a slip of paper on which Bill had written her first name three times—and he had never called her anything but Miss. Dutton. Musing happily, she goes to her own room, to find her overnight bag gone. As she goes to meet Danny Brooks, newspaperman, an American stranger enters her taxi, tells her Cameron is alive and gives her her vanity case from her stolen bag. In it she finds a card reading "Z. Y." Danny introduces her to Maria Herczek who takes them to Captain Rene Martin and the Rolands to her flat. Noel Yorke, a painter, calls there. He proves to be "Z. Y." Sanford tells her Bill is dead but "Z. Y." says he was kidnaped by Nazis because he knows the plans for an Allied offensive. She agrees to fly to Germany and instruct Bill to pretend to divulge the plans but to misstate the zero hour. Rene Martin is her pilot and lands on a crude field near Berlin.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XIV.

Looking carefully around and seeing nothing, she cautiously started down the path through the woods. It was a winding path but she knew that its general direction was north from the clearing. It was much darker among the trees, but enough light filtered through for her to find her way, and after nearly half an hour of careful walking she saw the trees thinning out in front of her. She slowed her pace and before emerging from the woods looked carefully out in every direction. Ahead, about a quarter of a mile, she could see the concrete strip of a main highway and she walked in that direction.

Reaching the road, she turned left in the direction she knew Berlin was, and saw a clump of trees dotted by spires, indicating a small village not far distant. She started in that direction and had gone no more than two hundred yards when she heard the roar of a bus on the road behind her.

Frantically Claire gestured for the driver to stop and when he pulled his heavy vehicle up, she clambered aboard.

"Berlin," she told the man and produced a ten-mark note.

"Three marks, Fraulein," the driver said. He was elderly, obviously beyond the regular military age.

Claire breathed easier when he had given her change, and settled back in a seat. She had glanced casually about the bus when she entered but aside from two men, dressed in rough working clothes, and a woman carrying a large basket which she kept carefully on her knees, there were no other passengers.

At the village the bus paused for several minutes, and Claire was nervous when the driver disappeared into a building.

"Did he suspect her?" "Was he calling the police?" were questions which rushed through her mind. By a tremendous effort, she controlled her feelings outwardly and pretended to be interested in the dozen or more passengers who climbed aboard.

Finally, the driver reappeared—alone—and after he had collected tickets and fares from the new passengers, the bus lurched onward toward Berlin. Claire could scarcely believe she actually was in the heart of Germany, each passing minute bringing her closer and closer to the man she loved—Bill Cameron. Where was he? Was he still safe? Would she be able to find him—give him the message that had been entrusted to her?

The bus was stopping more frequently now. Men in uniforms of various sorts were among the passengers, but they seemed intent on their newspapers or on pamphlets they drew from thir pockets. They paid not the slightest attention to the girl who was quaking with fear as she shrunk down in her seat.

It was a little after 8 o'clock when the bus finally rolled into the heart of Berlin and drew up to a stop at Unter den Linden and Friedrich strasse.

Claire had been in Berlin that summer with Bill Cameron and they had had rooms at a hotel near where she alighted from the bus. The German diplomatic corps at that time had done everything possible to make their stay pleasant. Tours and trips about the city had been arranged for her while Cameron was attending conferences, and there had been constant entertaining for both of them after hours.

Claire hoped that she would be lucky enough to avoid running into the many persons she had met then or, if she did, they would not identify her as the American girl who purposely spoke German very badly when she was with them. This was at Cameron's suggestion, on the theory that she might hear things not intended for her ears if it were thought she had merely a smattering of the language. She had picked up several bits of information at that, which helped him considerably in his negotiations.

Claire had learned the downtown district of Berlin fairly well during her previous stay and unhesitatingly turned south when she alighted from the bus. She didn't know exactly where Jaeger strasse was, but she found it after a walk of only four blocks and had little difficulty in finding Frau Weber's shop at the address that Yorke had given her. The door was securely locked and repeated knocking brought no response. She would have to return later.

Nearby at a small restaurant she ordered rolls and chocolate, and had a bad half minute when she almost asked for coffee—something that was then being rationed so carefully that it couldn't be bought in any restaurant.

She'd have to be very careful—watch every word she uttered—never make one false move.

It was 9 o'clock when Claire finished her simple breakfast. She turned again down Jaeger strasse and walked slowly to Frau Weber's shop.

The door was unlocked this time, and as she opened it a small bell tinkled overhead. The girl looked curiously around, but so far as she could see it was nothing more than it pretended to be—a small shop where newspapers and magazines and stationery were sold. The store was neatly arranged, and the floor was spotlessly clean.

In a case toward the front of the shop were displayed dozens of photographs and colored lithographs of Hitler and when a short, rather heavy-set woman approached from the back and inquired if she could serve her, Claire bought a small photograph of der Fuehrer.

"I'd also like a copy of the Tageblatt," she told the woman in German.

As the paper was handed to her, Claire, her heart racing, inquired in a low voice, "Am I speaking to Frau Weber?"

The woman, whose deep-set eyes had seemed a dull brown at first glance, eyed the girl closely for a minute and Claire saw a sudden lively interest reflected in her face.

"Yes. And who might you be?" she asked.

For answer, Claire dug into her purse and produced the key "Z.Y." had given her and repeated his message for Cameron. Frau Weber seemed to understand the meaning of "Z. Y.'s" instructions.

As she turned to make change for the girl's mark note, Claire heard the front door of the shop open and hastily turned her back, pretending to be interested in the headlines of the paper she had just bought.

Frau Weber went forward at once to greet the man, and Claire stole a glance in his direction and almost collapsed.

The man was George Roland who had been introduced to her three nights ago in Paris as an American importer! Later she had gone with him and his wife and the others to Maria Herczek's flat!

What was he doing here? Frightened, Claire shrank into a corner. Suppose he should turn and recognize her? What could she say?

Perhaps he would denounce her as a spy! Run to the door and shout for the police!

Roland was addressing Frau Weber in a low tone, and although Claire caught an occasional word she could not make out what he was saying. He was speaking German, very good German, and speaking very rapidly.

As Claire glanced out of the corner of her eyes, Frau Weber answered Roland, he nodded and then walked back through the store, opened a door and disappeared. Claire breathed a sigh of relief; he hadn't looked in her direction. Apparently he hadn't even noticed there was any one else in the shop.

When she was sure he wasn't coming right back, she came out of the corner and spoke to Frau Weber again. The woman seemed slightly nervous. With frequent glances toward the back of the shop, she told Claire in a low tone she had better go away.

"It will be all right to return at five this afternoon," she said. "I would advise you to keep off the streets—don't go into any place where there is any danger of being recognized."

Claire wanted to ask a hundred questions, questions about Roland, about Cameron, but Frau Weber had so obviously been upset by the sudden appearance of Roland that she decided she had better take her advice and clear out. The questions could wait until later.

"Is there a church nearby?" Claire asked. "That would be a good place for me to keep off the streets without being questioned."

Carefully walking eastward several blocks, and north a block without seeming to be in too great a hurry, Claire made her way towards Hedwig church. She had chosen a church instead of a railway station as she reasoned that members of the Gestapo—Hitler's greatly feared secret police—undoubtedly kept a close watch on all public gathering places. She must not attract attention, must avoid any suspicious move, or she would certainly be closely questioned.

Thinking this as she walked, her strained nerves became jumpy. Her thoughts went back to George Roland. Why had he gone to Frau Weber's shop? Why was he in Berlin? Where did he go when he left Frau Weber's? Perhaps he had noticed her and would notify the police.

Her guess in regard to Hedwig church was entirely correct. The door, when she pushed it, swung open, and she slowly entered the dimly lit interior and found a seat in a high-backed pew. If she were quiet, she might reasonably expect to stay there as long as she wished without interference.

TARZAN—By Edgar Rice Burroughs

No. 112 A Foe Becomes a Friend

EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS
WHILE THE MIGHTY APE-MAN SUBDUED THE CREATURE, HE SPOKE IN SOOTHING TONES.
THE ELEPHANT UNDERSTOOD NOW THAT THE MAN-THING WAS HIS FRIEND. HE NUZZLED CLOSE, THEN A HUGE TUSKER···
BELIEVING THE YOUNG ONE WAS ENDANGERED, CHARGED OUT OF THE FOREST, STRAIGHT AT TARZAN.

The original Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde was a clever little Scotch cabinet maker who lived in the Eighteenth century. The story of his exploits, which ended on a gallows he designed himself, will be dramatized.

GOOD NEWS—Scarlett O'Hara's Mammie, Hattie McDaniel, who scored a personal triumph in "Gone With the Wind," will answer questions about her part in the film as a special guest on Good News of 1940 during its broadcast to be heard over WSB at 8 o'clock tonight. Edward Arnold will play the lead role in a dramatic sequence, and Raymond Walburn, stage and screen actor, will make his second consecutive appearance, as other highlights of the show.

MUSIC HALL—Hilda Burke, famed soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company; Maureen O'Hara, English actress, and the man of many supporting roles in the films, Alan Hale, make up the diversified list of personalities who will be heard from by Bing Crosby in the Music Hall during its broadcast over WSB at 9 o'clock tonight.

The program includes:

"Vagabond Dreams."
"Missouri Waltz."
"Ma, He's Making Eyes at Me."
"My Little Girl."

CELEBRATION—Part of the vast celebration marking the completion of the 25,000,000th General Motors automobile, entitled "March of Men and Motors," will be heard over WAGA at 9:30 o'clock tonight. The event symbolizes in a way the entire American history for the first third of this century.

A Broadway production including 300 actors, singers and dancers, based on these historic years will be staged during the broadcast. Music by the Detroit Symphony orchester, under the direction of Erno Rapee, Tenor Jan Peerce, and a large male chorus, and an address by Charles F. Kettering, vice president of General Motors, will be other highlights of the show.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10¢ and 25¢. Stubbornly refuse anything else.
